RICH BRIDE POISONED AFTER MAKING WILL

DEATH LAID TO MERCURY BY UNCLE

Scores of Detectives on the Case of Mrs. Webb, Who Left $2,000,000

New York, Sept. 29.—The official machinery of two district attorneys' offices buzzed today in an effort to probe the mystery death of Mrs. Gertrude E. Gorman Webb, heiress bride believed to have been poisoned.

She died in the exclusive Westchester Biltmore Country Club at Rye on Tuesday.

Strange things happened previous to her death and today scores of detectives and medical authorities taking part in the probe prophesied that New York was on the threshold of another weird and sensational crime.

Mrs Webb was deliberately poisoned, according to her uncle, William T. Hunter, in an interview at his home in Devon, Pa. She was given bichloride of mercury in small doses, he said, to cause slow death. He would not say whom he suspected or why he believed the drug was given to her.

Mrs. Webb had $2,000,000 in her own right. She lay sick for weeks suffering, doctors believe, from slow lethal poisoning.

CHANGED HER WILL.

While she lay at death's door she was prevailed upon to change her will disposing of $2,000,000. An attempt was made to have her make a third will.

The day she died a man appeared at the office of District Attorney Moah Banton here and informed Assistant District Attorney Peters that the heiress married but 10 months was about to die "under suspicious circumstances."

Following death a physician in attendance refused to sign a death certificate on the grounds that the death was "suspicious."

Relatives demanded an autopsy. It was performed by Coroner Edward P. Fitzgerald of Westchester County. Before he performed same police appeared at theh otel to conduct an investigation.

"You aren't needed here," they

WARD CASE WITNESS DRINKS POISON

New York, Sept. 29.—William Mundia, who testified before the Grand Jury which indicted Walter S. Ward for the murder of Clarence M. Peters, attempted suicide last night by drinking poison in the cell at the Tombs, where he is held on a charge of robbery.

Mundia, a chauffeur, swallowed an ounce of the poison, according to Tombs officials, after having bet a fellow inmate he had the courage to do so. He was taken to Bellevue hospital.

Several months ago Mundia told his keepers he had swallowed a handful of pins because he wanted to die. The X-ray failed, however, to locate the pins.

WOMAN STRIPPED AND FLOGGED BY KLANSMEN IN OKLAHOMA

MINISTER IS THROWN IN DITCH

Stevens declared several had vanished, following the receipt of warning messages.

Oklahoma City, Okla., Sept. 29 (Universal News).—Governor J. C. Walton issued the second number of his own paper, the Record, in which he specifically charges the Ku Klux Klan with atrocious outrages. To stop these he declared the State under martial law.

The cases cited, the Governor explained, are supported by evidence already adduced by the military investigation.

Under the captain of "Klan strips woman of only robe; mob flogs till she is senseless," appears the testimony of Anna Pike of Broken Bow, Okla.

In the testimony published in the Record the woman tells how the mob visited her home in the night and told her to get up. The testimony continues:

"They pulled me out of bed in my night clothes. I recognized them as they pushed me toward the door. I told them to wait until I could get my dress, and they said I didn't need any dress. When I reached to get my dress a man threw a gun on me. That man I recognized as Leon Barth. I grabbed a quilt and wrapped it around me. They handcuffed Joe and me together, blindfolded us and put us in a car."

The woman then told of a ride to the country, to a secluded spot.

"They took Joe out of the car and left two men to guard me," the testimony as published by the record continues. "I asked them not to hurt Joe or harm him in any way. They said they were going to make a man out of him; that the United States government had given them the right to act in any way they saw fit. I didn't see Joe, but I heard him holler and heard the licks."

FOR SELLING BEER

After the flogging Joe was returned to the car and the woman dragged out and told she was to be punished for selling beer.

"They took the quilt away from around me and I just had on my night gown," the testimony continues. "They began to whip me and I began screaming. They put their hands to my mouth and I fell unconscious. I didn't know anything more until I was back in the car. When I came to I was all wet and one had hold of my pulse and one asked if my heart was beating. They blindfolded me and brought me back home. I was sick at that time and have not been well since."

STORY OF PREACHER.

The Governor also published another statement, concerning the whipping of the Rev. Mr. Irwin of Lawton. He is the Presbyterian minister who preached the funeral sermon of Jake L. Hamon, former Republican national committeeman from Oklahoma, who was slain in a love affair. The Governor's statement follows in part:

"I have received the following petition signed by the Rev. Irwin and a very large number of citizens of Comanche county.

"To Governor J. C. Walton, Oklahoma City:

"We, the undersigned citizens of Lawton and Comanche county, petition you to investigate the mobbing and whipping of Rev. Irwin in this country on several occasions, beginning with March 6, 1921, when a masked mob ordered him at the point of a gun to leave Oklahoma and never again mention the name of Jake L. Hamon or die, and again on April 29, 1922, when he was slugged, gagged, bound and thrown into a ditch of water in Medicine Park and left to die, and again on June 5, 1922, when he was taken by a masked mob, armed with guns, stripped, beaten and left by the roadside to die.

"Although Rev. Irwin has appealed to the local authorities to find and punish these criminals, no effort has been made on their part, as far as your petitioners have been able to learn, to bring the offenders to justice, and the prevailing opinion is that local officials desiring to suppress his lawlessness there has been a studied effort to shield the law violators and even encourage them in their lawless raids.

"This condition creates a feeling of insecurity and dread in this community, and will certainly lead to grave conditions unless the proper authorities appear to be unable or unwilling to do anything, we appeal to you to protect us that we and our families may be able to pursue our ordinary duties as citizens of this State."

FIENDISH OUTRAGE.

Governor Walton made public part of the sworn testimony in the case of Mrs. Pearl Hattor of Sulphur, Okla. He characterizes this as one of the most fiendish of the mob outrages.

Abductors after outraging her, poured mud on her, burning her arms and breast. Their main objection to her was that she was keeping company with a Greek.

There is no sworn evidence available that this outrage was by Ku Klux members.

The Governor declares that in establishing martial law he has not interfered with anyone else in the State nor with the liberties of the law-abiding citizens. He holds that the Legislature is controlled by the Klan and wishes to impress him so that this investigation of the Klan may be halted.

"This 'Dragon' N. P. Jewett, who now stands charged with rioting in this country, has marshaled his forces with members of the legislature, and they are trying to convene themselves in impeach me.

"Here is a proposal to convene a Legislature for the express purpose of impeaching me from office because I have uncovered the crimes of the Ku Klux Klan in Oklahoma.

"Do you think I would have a fair and impartial trial in that aggregation of cutthroats?

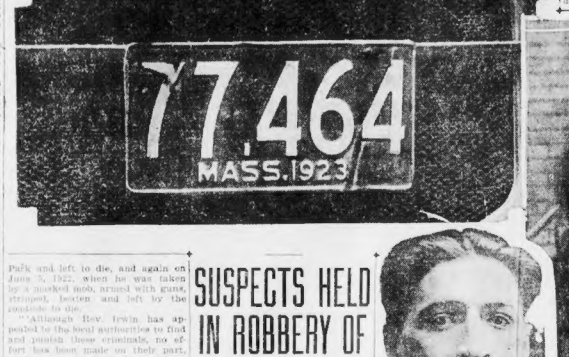
"The only thing that surprises me is that they have not convened their legislature at night in the whipping chamber and there, in full regalia of mask and robes, in the presence of daggers, cyclops, goblins and ghastly ingenuity put me in the sanctity of nature's temple that has so often resounded with the cries and agonies of tortured victims.

NO MOB SHALL RULE.

"In view of the whippings, maimings and killings brought to the door of the Klan, we take this means to express the lawlessness of the forces involved in these activities. Whose lives may be lost and property destroyed in their efforts to supplant organized government by Ku Klux Klan government, which inflicts punishment without trial by jury, at the order of the 'sandwizrin?'

"From their expressions and their own defiance of lawful authority, they evidently intend to ride through blood up to the bridle and any who may oppose them will be 'wading through a slaughter house into an open grave.'

BARES AUTO BANDITS' RUSE



SUSPECTS HELD IN ROBBERY OF GAMBLERS

Boston and State police today arrested four men as members of the masked quintette that shot up a crap game at Randolph early Sunday and took cash and jewelry amounting to $6,000 from victims.

All were given a "third degree" at police headquarters then hurried to the Quincy Hospital where two of the holdup victims are convalescing from wounds and a brutal beating given them by the "stickup men."

Three of the men arrested are North Enders. They were caught today.

They are Carmello Guiffre, twenty years old, No. 18 Charter street; Angelo Stizzaro, twenty-three, No. 414 Commercial street; Victorio Miele, twenty-four, No. 444 Commercial street, and Anthony Delrosso of No. 407 Revere street, Revere.

Detectives, with Chief Hurley of Randolph, waited several hours secreted in a Commercial street doorway for an automobile with registration 77464 to hove in view.

It finally did. In it were Angelo and Victorio. They got out at No. 414 Commercial street. The officers approached. They fled into No. 444. There they were captured at gun point.

In the machine police say was eighteen gallons of alcohol. The men offered alibis, which are being investigated. Police say the machine is the one which carried the bandits to and from the holdup at Randolph.

Guiffre was arrested in North square, North End, on a description furnished by several of the men robbed by the bandits. He was at liberty on bail on a charge of assault committed in Wilmington when the robbery took place.

According to the police, he has been arrested several times before in connection with holdups, but had never been positively identified as the bandit sought.

The Boston police turned him over to Chief John Hurley of the Randolph police, and State Detectives Brouillard and Fleming, who are assigned to the case.

BERLIN IN NEW SURRENDER; WILL PAY

Berlin, Sept. 29 (A.P.).—It was officially announced today that the ordinance of January 13, suspending deliveries in kind on reparations to France and Belgium has been annulled.

The Franco-Belgian authorities operating the railroads in the Rhineland and Ruhr opened a recruiting office at Mayence to engage 30,000 German railroad men. All will be obliged to take the oath to obey the allied military authorities.

Many persons were wounded during an attack by Separatists on German police in a suburb of Dusseldorf.

CALLS STORROW RAILROAD PLAN "IMPOSSIBLE"

Charging that the so-called Storrow plan for consolidation of New England railroads is "impracticable and impossible," Philip Dexter, Boston attorney, one of the appointees of Governor Cox to the Storrow committee to form a plan for such consolidation, attacked the report of the committee favoring it at a hearing before Interstate Commerce commissioners in Ford Hall today.

"The Storrow plan is conditional upon something happening or being done which will never be done and thus falls to the ground," declared Attorney Dexter. He referred to surrendering of bonds by bond holders and stockholders and establishment of fixed rates.

The Storrow plan was favored by a majority of the committee members in its report.

Friends of the plan have been putting in evidence all the past week. Today its enemies had their innings.

"The Storrow plan depends upon the rehabilitation of the New Haven Railroad," declared Attorney Dexter. "It calls upon bondholders of that road to surrender $75,000,000 in bonds and calls upon stockholders to surrender $15,000,000, or 75 per cent. of the market value of its capital stock today.

"It also calls for fixed charges of operation, to be guaranteed by the six States of New England, necessitating uniform legislation in all of the six and a constitutional amendment in the State of Maine.

"The States will never all consent to any fixed railroad charges or remission of taxes and that is a question first to be considered.

"The object of the plan for consolidating American railways is to compel strong lines to support the weak ones. It is significant that, while the trunk lines all say 'We don't want the New England lines,' they also all say, 'We don't want any other line to have them.'

"The railroad situation in New England has come to this condition: They must either pick the trunk lines strong enough to support them, go into receiverships or raise rates. Higher rates means more and more industry leaving the territory."

VANDERBILT TO TAKE BRIDE NOV. 1

William H. Vanderbilt, who recently inherited $10,000,000 on his twenty-first birthday, will be married in New York on Nov. 1.

His bride-to-be is Emily O'Neil Davies, daughter of Mrs. Frederick M. Davies of New York and Newport.

William H. Vanderbilt.

They will live in Boston, but will spend part of their time at Portsmouth, R. I., on the huge Vanderbilt farm.

Considered the "greatest society catch" of the year, news of the wedding surprised Back Bay society today. It was understood the couple would be married abroad. Young Vanderbilt just returned from a trip around the world.

He is the only son of Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt by his first marriage to Elsie French, now Mrs. Paul Fitzsimmons.

His recent tour was taken with his mother and step-father. Vanderbilt is the fifth in descent from the late Commodore Vanderbilt.

AUTO KIDNAPERS ATTACK WOMAN

bald Gourley, 21 years of Greenwich street, all of Springfield.

In District Court they were held for hearing October 15.

According to the story Mrs. Thomas told the police, she was walking on Springfield street on the Spring field side of the Chicopee line, on her way home.

As she neared the vicinity of her home, about midnight, the automobile containing the men drove up to the sidewalk and stopped. Two of the men left the car, and before Mrs. Thomas realized what was happening, seized her and dragged her into the tonneau.

The driver then started the automobile, turned and going out Amory street, proceeded to Ludlow. The woman kicked and struggled in the rear seat, she said, but the two men held her and prevented her from leaping out.

When a lonely spot was reached, the car was stopped, Mrs. Thomas said, and the driver entered the tonneau. Then, while the other men held her arms, the driver, said to have been Hanlan, attacked her.

Returning to the driving seat, Hanlan started the engine and the car, owned by Gourley, proceeded back to Chicopee, where Mrs. Thomas was thrown out.

As it turned sheteok the registration number, and then went home, arriving at 2:20 a.m. Mrs. Thomas awakened her husband, told her story and he took her to the Chicopee police. They in turn took the couple to Springfield police headquarters.

In the meantime Gourley had appeared at headquarters a short time before and reported the loss of his car. He said it had been stolen from Main street between 12:30 a. m. and 2 o'clock. The car was found later on Birnie avenue.

The police became suspicious, and after hearing the story of Mrs. Thomas, placed Gourley under arrest. The arrest of the other two men followed.

AUTO REPAIRER RUN DOWN; FATALLY HURT

Lionel Crowell, of No. 28 Southside avenue, Lawndale, an automobile repairer, on his way home to dinner with his week's pay, stepped in the path of an automobile in front of his house and was probably fatally injured today. The machine was owned and operated by John H. Marshall of No. 3 Lawndale avenue, Saugus. Crowell was rushed to Lynn Hospital where his name was placed on the danger list. He has a wife and three children.

ROB DRIVER OF $4 AND HIS TAXICAB

On Thursday next a public hearing will be held at his office. The dead woman's husband and relatives will be quizzed. While that probe is under way District Attorney Banton is having New York counsel to discover if poison was bought and administered to the woman.

MOTHER'S SIMILAR DEATH.

Mrs. Webb maintained a residence at No. 226 Madison avenue.

From there today moved a hearse with two orderlies remained. Organs are in a laboratory being examined by chemists for traces of poison. Upon their pathological research hinges the verdict as to murder.

Prominent New Yorkers are speeding the investigation. Two prominent jurists were friends of the woman's family.

Two years ago her mother died under similar circumstances.

Charles Webb, husband of the dead woman, says there is nothing mysterious about her death. He has moved to the Yale Club. He was opposed in his suit for the dead woman's hand by her mother, Mrs. S. Jennings Gorman. She bitterly opposed the marriage.

In a preliminary examination, following an autopsy yesterday, Dr. Alexander O. Gettler, Bellevue Hospital toxologist, failed to find traces of metallic poisons. On the other hand, it was unofficially reported at the Criminal Courts Building that Dr. Otto H. Schuiling, medical assistant to the District Attorney, had found evidence of a corrosive substance. Death by hydrocrite of mercury poisoning has been suspected by the dead woman's relatives and friends.

THE FIRST WILL.

The first of Mrs. Webb's wills, executed in February, 1921, shortly after Mrs. Webb's mother died, leaving her a fortune of $2,000,000 bequathed the inheritance to relatives and friends. At that time, still hearing in mind her mother's strong protests against a decade of courtship by Webb, the then Miss Gorman had not yet accepted the broker's suit.

Information given by close friends and by two attorneys revealed that during Mrs. Webb's fatal illness she signed a new line will naming Webb as her sole legatee. It was discovered that this will, under New York statutes would not hold, as it left none of the property to Mrs. Webb's kin. Thereupon, it was said, another will of several pages was prepared, which Mrs. Webb refused to sign.

TOLD SHE MUST DIE

At that later date, these friends said, Mrs. Webb had confided to Dr. William J. Mayer, the attending physician, who later declined to sign a death certificate and insisted that the coroner take charge of the body, a suspicion that she had been poisoned. This thought she expressed in the presence of a woman.

Mrs. Webb was then counting, day by day, the thirty days of life that a New York physician was said to have allotted her on Aug. 30, when she was afflicted with an eye trouble that sent her to Roosevelt Hospital. The psychological effect on a woman who in her forty years of happy life had never experienced a moment's ills was a severe deterrent to her fight for recovery, those who watched at the bedside reported.

MOORS REPULSED BY SPANIARDS

Madrid, Sept. 29 (U.N.S.).—Rebel troops attacked Tifaquin but were driven off by the Spanish, said a military communique from Moroccan headquarters today. A Spanish convoy also was attacked. A rebel battalion of 370 men was repulsed at Meyuren. Heavy concentrations of Moors were reported at Taforsit Market.

ITALY TO AID REFUGEES WITH PART OF GREEK FUND

London, Sept. 29.—King Victor Emanuel and Premier Mussolini have decided to give one million of the fifty million lire ($5,550,000) received in the Greece indemnity settlement toward the relief of Greek and Armenian refugees from Asia, said a Rome despatch this afternoon. The indemnity was received in Rome today from the Bank of Switzerland and closes the incident that began with the assassination of Italian members of the Albanian boundary commission August 27.

A Central News despatch from Athens says Greece has lodged an energetic protest with the allied council of ambassadors in Paris against the return of the Italian fleet to Corfu.

PHONES HE'S PLANNING SUICIDE; COP PINCHES MAN AS DRUNK

Found: A thoughtful man.

Newspaper editor's telephone rang today: "I'm out here in Forest Hills," said a male voice. "Going to commit suicide. If you send a reporter down I'll wait'll he gets here before I kick off."

The West Roxbury police sent Patrolman Finnerty.

He found an old chap with a heavy breath and stumbling gait. He was arested for drunkeness and his name withheld.

GAS KILLS SOUTH END WOMAN, MOTHER IN WEYMOUTH

Alma E. Fowler died today in a basement. She was found lying on a sofa at No. 480 Columbus avenue, a rooming house. From an unlighted jet on the wall flowed gas.

"Death by gas," is the medical examiner's verdict. The body is at the Southern morgue.

Down in South Weymouth, at No. 416 Main street, a silver-haired old woman is sobbing. She was Alma's mother. She got the news as she sat down to partake of a lonesome breakfast.

Alma was thirty-seven years old.

LONDON AUTO DEATHS JUMP, BLAME LAID ON AMERICA

London, Sept. 29.—America is receiving much of the blame for the alarming increase in street accidents in London. The latest report shows that 171 people were killed in 14,199 accidents in the streets of the capital during April, May and June, the largest number in a similar period in the city's history. Several of the London newspapers, pointing out that this increase is due to the ever increasing hurry, declare it is the result of, the further spread of the American idea.

POLICE HOLD TAXI DRIVER WHO SAYS HE WAS ROBBED

Charles Scribner of Massachusetts avenue is an "owl taxi" driver. Early today he picked up two men in Adams Square. "To Cambridge," they said. Over the East Cambridge line, Scribner told police, the customers stuck him up with a gun, took $4 from him also his cab.

The police are holding Scribner while they investigate his story.

Rich Man Kills Poor Man 1700 to 1, and Bad Luck From Thunder to Squeak Welcome Ethiopian Queen

Current Events

—By Arthur Brisbane—

Copyright, 1923, Star Co.

FOR MONTHS PAST New York State has asked the question, "Can a rich man kill a poor man and get away with it?"

The answer, "Yes," was given yesterday by a jury. Walter S. Ward, son of an enormously rich man, was acquitted of the confessed killing of a penniless former sailor, Clarence S. Peters, and set free.

RESPECT FOR our jury system compels us all to call the verdict justified. But it causes thought.

The accused man confessed the killing. He did not go on the stand, or offer any defence, produce a single witness. Except a speech by his lawyer, who said Ward killed, in self-defence a man attempting to blackmail him, he declined to give further information on the ground that it would disgrace his family. AND THE JURY ACQUITTED HIM.

REVERSE THE CASE. Suppose the penniless sailor had murdered the rich man, and said, "I killed him in self-defence. He was acting in a way that would have disgraced my family. I decline to give any details. I desire to protect my family name. That's my story." Would the sailor have been acquitted?

BETTING AT the races in so-called Paris mutuels, a Bombay merchant, Mr. Khambatta, bet ten rupees, won seventeen thousand; one hundred and nine rupees, more than 1,700 to 1. Before calling him lucky, wait for Mr. Khambatta's complete history. Hereafter he will imagin himself a wonderful "picker." Unless wiser than most men, he will live to rue the day that he bet his ten rupees on Kleitor in the second race.

HOW FAR THE Astor fortune sheds its beams. An English Astor is chief owner of the London Times. He will never allow control to be sold. The Times will be put under control of great Englishmen such as, for instance, the Archbishop of Canterbury, the Lord Chancellor, the Director of Edinburgh University. The Times must keep thundering through the ages. That is the foolish planning.

THERE MUST BE electric power back of thunder. There must be personality back of a real newspaper. The son of Mr. Astor's stable boy may produce a newspaper that will make all the thundering of the supermanaged London Times sound like a mouse's pitiful squeak.

ADOLPH OCHS, who owns the New York Times, asked this writer, "How can I make the Times a permanent institution?" The answer to that question was: "Mr. Ochs, live forever."

When the man goes out in a newspaper it is the same as when the light goes out in a lantern. Unless another man can start the light—no newspaper, no lantern.

ETHIOPIA ENTERS THE League of Nations, Abyssinia having convinced the League that she will give up slavery. She won't give it up, of course, although Prince Dedjazmatch Nadeou will doubtless do his best, and so will his august ruler, Her Majesty Oulzero Zoouditu.

Many Americans will be satisfied NOT to have the Empress Oulzero voting on an equality with the United States—each one vote—in deciding questions affecting the United States. That would happen if this nation were foolish enough to be in the League. We admire and revere Oulzero, but we'd rather run along in the old way, without help.

GOVERNOR WALTON, of Oklahoma, fighting the Ku Klux Klan, does not want to injure the State by exaggerating the seriousness of the situation. He says the thing is "political, not exactly racial or religious."

And he adds: "I doubt if there has been a Catholic flogged. Only a few Jews are among the Klan victims in the State."

That "only a few Jews" sounds more like Torquemada than like a modern Governor.

DR. W. J. MAYO, great surgeon, says—please remember it:

"More than 71 per cent. of patients operated on for cancer get well when operation is not delayed too long."

After the cancer spreads from the "primary focus" the situation is difficult and dangerous.

And remember THIS, especially:

"No medicine will cure cancer. Only quacks or the very ignorant will recommend it."

AT 7 O'CLOCK last night Germany was still quiet, with Dr. Gessler, Minister of Defence, in charge of everything as military dictator. No outbreak so far. None will come unless German workmen want it. They are all trained soldiers. Communists or others would need a powerful force to deal with a trained army of several millions that Gessler could call out on short notice. How long will the workmen, trained by the Social Democratic party in thinking, trained by the Kaiser as soldiers, hold out on nine cents a day?

FANNIE WARD 'CONSIDERING A DIVORCE'

FANNIE WARD

Paris, Sept. 29.—Renewed reports are circulating here that Fanny Ward, who once startled the world by announcing the discovery of "perpetual youth," and Jack Dean, renowned in film land as the possessor of the "most fighting jaw in the world," are considering a divorce following their separation.

This makes approximately the eleventh time that similar rumors have been current since Fanny and Jack took up their residence in Paris.

DENIES MOTION TO QUASH RUM BRIBE CASE

Motions to quash indictments against Harold L. Harvey, former prohibition officer, John W. Rourke, Springfield liquor dealer and Joseph Weisenberg, Holyoke liquor dealer, who with Aldrmar Grandchamp on trial in Federal Court charged with conspiracy and an attempt to bribe a prohibition agent, were dismissed by Judge Morris today.

A verdict of not guilty was ordered by the court in the case of Grandchamp. The trial of the other three will be resumed on Tuesday.

The men are alleged to have been agents of a ring of Holyoke and Springfield liquor dealers who, it is charged agreed to contribute $50 a month each to buy immunity from Federal raids.

SENATE CHAPLAIN IS 80 YEARS OLD

Rev. Dr. Edward A. Horton, chaplain of the State Senate for 20 years, and Civil War veteran, celebrated his 80th birthday in spite of himself.

Though he had declined the tender of an anniversary dinner, he received many letters and telegrams of congratulations, among them communication a from President Coolidge and Gov. Cox.

Rev. E. A. Horton

Others who sent best wishes were Rev. Dr. Samuel A. Eliot and Rev. Louis C. Comrish, respectively president and secretary of the American Unitarian Association; Rev. E. R. Shippen of Second Church, of which Dr. Horton was once pastor, and many old friends and parishioners.

STOKES LETTER ATTACKS WIFE

19 Killed by Storms in Mid-West

MRS. STOKES TERMED "SLICK"

Husband Directs Search of Notorious Chicago Resorts in Hunt for Evidence

Chicago, Sept. 29.—"You're up against a lady of experience and as slick as they make them," wrote W. E. D. Stokes, aged New York millionaire, to a private detective here whom he employed to look for evidence against his young wife. He has sought to divorce her for more than a year.

The letter was written on July 26, 1923, and constitutes part of alleged corrupt machinations instigated by Stokes which Chicago authorities are now investigating.

Stokes, it is charged, aimed to defame his wife, Mrs. Helen Elwood Stokes, and ruin her character. The letter follows:

First—I inclose you pictures of Mrs. Stokes in an Electric Victoria. From affidavits before me I judge this Electric Victoria was purchased in Chicago after November 10, 1904, and before November 23, 1905, and that she got the money from Clarence McCormick of New York and Salt Lake City, who wasted $3,000,000 and is now busted, and is now in New York.

Now I am inclined to believe that this Electric Victoria was not purchased in Denver, for the following reason, but, where it was purchased I do not yet know, but statements before me say it was purchased in Chicago.

AFFIDAVITS CLAIMED

First, we have served affidavits to the effect that in 1905 this Electric Victoria was constantly seen with Mrs. Stokes in it and in front of the Everleigh Club and in front of Buxbaums, John Williams and Little Savoy, colored resorts, and sometimes she was seen with Clarence McCornick, on the boulevards, and sometimes a colored man was driving around in it. Some say it was Needham Wright, and others say it was Al Harris—two mulattos.

Second, we have two sets of pictures of this Electric Victoria.

A: Set "A" is apparently taken in Winter, and she has peculiar feathers in her hat. I am sending you these pictures and the balance to-morrow.

C: You will notice the picture "C" of Mrs. Stokes seated in a chair with a mulatto child in her lap, and that she has this same hat on with the peculiar feathers—as in this Victoria. As to this picture "C" we are advised that many of the girls in the Everleigh Club had copies of it, and that it was taken in 1905 or before November 23, 1905, so it is likely this Victoria was purchased in 1905.

B: Set "B" I have not yet had these pictures of this Victoria taken, but they all show that they were taken in Summer, and I believe taken in front of her stepfather's house, No. 851 Clarkson street, Denver, and she wears different style dresses and a different hat, with a different feather in it, and looks from the age and size of the children in one of them to have been taken in Denver about 1907 to 1909.

BABY IN LAP

D: From three affidavits before us we got in Chicago, picture D shows her with a peculiar fine white ermine neckpiece, and which took

PROTESTS WHIPPING OF BOYS

Winchester Mother Complains to the Police About School Principal's Drastic Action

Mrs. Elizabeth Allen of No. 9 Nelson street, Winchester, has made complaint to the police, the selectmen and the superintendent of schools because her twelve-year-old son, James, and three other boys were whipped by Headmaster Raymond E. Pinkham of the Wadleigh grammar school.

James Allen

The other boys are George Frauton, Bruce Whitney, and Nazzio Amico.

The hands and wrists of the Allen boy show welts. Miss Allen charges her boy's misconduct was his first offense, did not warrant a whipping.

FAUSEY INVESTIGATES

John R. Fausey, superintendent of schools, took steps to investigate the whipping.

"My son has been a good boy in school for seven years and never was in trouble before," Mrs. Allen said. "Principal Pinkham discriminated when he picked out these four to whip as a lesson to the whole schoolroom of boys who laughed at some classroom incident.

"A boy fell over his seat and we all laughed at him," said James Allen. "Miss Ellis, our teacher, told the principal and he picked out four of us for a whipping. We went to his office.

"He said to us, 'Well, which of you wants the rattan first?' And we all answered, 'We're ready for you now.'

TEACHERS AS WITNESSES

"He sent for two teachers and licked us in their presence. He brought out a dozen rattans and picked out the longest for us.

"Miss O'Sullivan, my former teacher, who was called in to watch, said she could not understand why I should be getting a licking. Mr. Pinkham gave me five hard blows on the left hand and three on the right. One boy got thirteen blows."

The Allen boy, whose mother is divorced, helps to support her by selling papers and working on farms in his leisure hours. Principal Pinkham said today that he had just cause for rattaning the boys.

MOTHER WHO SHOT SON FREED BY COURT

Chicago, Sept. 28.—A prosecutor virtually turned defence counsel today and with the "moral law" precedence over the criminal code, Mrs. Rose Spain, who shot and killed her son Dezso Szabo, seven weeks ago, to save him from a life of crime, was discharged in Municipal Court.

Mrs. Szabo.

Mrs. Szabo, recovered from her wounds, said he Red Photo. had "learned his lesson," and had a job. She also pleaded for his mother. The court dismissed the case.

GENERAL SAWYER QUITS VETS' BUREAU

Washington, Sept. 29.—Resignation of Brigadier-General Sawyer from the acting community managership of the Veterans' Bureau Hospital at Federal Park, Md., was announced by Director Hines in a statement which said Dr. Sawyer wished to devote all of his time to organization of the Harding Memorial Association."

DAD SAYS 'BLESS 'EM'; ELOPERS TO WED

WIN PARENT'S RIGHT TO MARRY

Mildred Little, of Holbrook, and her youthful sweetheart, John Bordeau, of Millis. They started to elope, but Mildred's dad had them pinched just in the nick of time. Now he's relented, wished them happiness and Monday they're to get married.

Dad Little had his eighteen-year-old daughter, Mildred, arrested when she eloped to Medway to marry John Bordeaux of Millis.

In Quincy Court today he relented and now they'll be married on Monday.

The Littles live in Holbrook.

Mildred and John met a year ago. They "kept company." Dad Little didn't object to that, never believing his daughter contemplated facing the high cost of living so young. But Mildred suddenly murmured "Yes" when John got impatient two weeks ago.

They waited until they could slip away unobserved. But Dad Little got wise and intercepted the elopement at the Medway city clerk's office. Today he said: "Bless you, my dears," and now everything's "perfect."

VINCENT CLUB GIRL ENAGED TO POPULAR HARVARD JUNIOR

Announcement is made by Mrs. Edward Andrews Clark of No. 149 Beacon street of the engagement of her daughter, Miss Helen Olivia Clark, to John Jay Hicks Kerr, son of Mr. and Mrs. Guy Morning Kerr of No. 29 Commonwealth avenue.

Mrs. Clark and her daughter, whose home formerly was in Commonwealth avenue, returned a week ago from their Summer travels in Europe, where they motored through Italy, later visiting Paris, to Mr. Kerr.

Miss Clark was a debutante of the past Winter. She took an active part in the "Animated Advertising," which was a notable charity and society event last season. She is a member of the Junior League and belongs also to the Vincent Club.

Mr. Kerr is a member of the class of 1924 at Harvard, where he belong to the Fly, the Iroquois and D. K. E. clubs. Not time has been announced for Miss Clark's marriage to Mr. Kerr.

WOMAN DIES AWAITING TRIAL WITH HUSBAND IN DOPE CASE

While awaiting trial on a charge of violating the narcotic laws, Mrs. Frank Alcardi, of No. 67 Telegraph street, South Boston, died after a short illness at a private hospital. Death is said to be due to pneumonia.

On August 29, 1923 specific officers Monahan, Conway and Donovan of the Headquarter's "dope" squad seized four grains of morphine and several hypodermic sets in the Alcardi home during a raid. Mrs. Alcardi and her husband, Frank, were arrested and taken to headquarters. The woman was charge with having 200 grains of morphine in her possession and her husband was charged with being implicated after morphine was found.

Both were arraigned in the South Boston district court and held in $1,000 each for trial.

"IT'S JUST THE RING I WANT," SAYS YOUTH AS HE FLEES

Lawrence, Sept. 29.—A young man found just the diamond ring he wanted at the jewelry store of Alexander Abayarth, No. 125 Hampshire street, today.

He dropped in and told the jeweler he was a happy man and wanted an engagement ring. The tray was put out on the counter.

"This looks just like what I want," said the young man, picking up one valued at $150. He then edged towards a better light near the door.

"Yes, this is just what I want," he mused. "I'll take it."

He did.

He slid out the door and down an alley. The police were notified.

WOMAN WILL CARE FOR GRAVE OF MAN WHO LEFT HER $20,000

Hannah Sylvester, septuagenarian, who was left $20,000 and a diamond ring by William Andrew Mehaffey, millionaire merchant, whose will was recently probated, said today she would fulfill the request of her benefactor in respect to his grave.

He asked that she plant flowers there every Spring.

"I certainly will do so," she said today at the Copley Square Hotel.

She refused to detail her friendship with the millionaire, who maintained a Beacon street residence.

"We were old, old friends, that is all," she said.

BIG MAJORITY FOR BONUS IN CONGRESS, SAYS LEGION

Washington, Sept. 29 (I.N.S.)—The American Legion has completed a poll of the new Congress, which indicates that a soldier bonus bill will be passed by large majorities in both Houses, and that there will be enough votes to enact the legislation over a possible presidential veto.

PROPERTY DAMAGE IS HIGH

Tornadoes, Cloudbursts and Floods Sweep Over Parts of Three States

Omaha, Neb., Sept. 29 (I.N.S.)—Nineteen known dead and property damage running into thousands of dollars is the toll of violent storms, accompanied by cloudbursts and floods, in three Mid-Western States. In several localities the storms still were raging early today.

Mill Creek, near Louisville, Neb., claimed twelve lives when it swept away a house and drowned all its occupants. The creek, a tributary of the Platte River, was swollen to flood proportions by a cloudburst and swept out of its banks, covering a large part of the village of Louisville.

Five persons were killed and a number of others reported injured when a tornado descended on Council Bluffs, Ia., and levelled many buildings within an area of two blocks.

Another severe storm was reported to have struck Oshkosh, a small Nebraska community.

Wyoming and sections of Iowa and Kansas are heaviest sufferers in the storms.

Scores of bridges were swept away in Wyoming and long stretches of railroad track washed out.

At Council Bluffs thirty-five houses were reported wrecked. Firemen were called out to rescue occupants. The Strand Theatre, on the banks of Indian Creek, caved in but no one was injured.

MAE BUSCH, MOVIE STAR, TO WED WILKIE

Mae Busch, film star, will become the bride of Al. Wilkie, publicity purveyor for Lasky. The Busch-Wilkie marriage is declared to be an event of the very near future. Miss Busch is now in New York.

Dan appreciates the gift but he's wondering, too.

WALES IS GIVEN LOOK AT CATTLE ROUNDUP

Calgary, Alberta, Sept. 29 (I.N.S.)—The Prince of Wales, who is travelling as "Lord Renfrew," got a taste of real Canadian life today when he took part in the annual Autumn roundup on his ranch, the E. P. Eighty head of calves were rounded up and branded. The Prince rode out with the cowboys and was a most interested spectator while they lassoed and branded the calves.

DESERTED ON WEDDING NIGHT

Paris, Sept. 29. (I.N.S.)—Deserted on her wedding night, was the allegation made by Mrs. Percival Hopewood, a wealthy American woman, who filed suit for divorce today in the Seine tribunal. Her maiden name was Florence Brown. She was married at Bedford, N. Y., September 30, 1922. Another American who appealed to have her nuptial bonds set aside was Mrs. Edwin F. Faber, nee Marlin, who was married in New York two years ago.

WARD'S FATHER, NO LONGER FEARING SCANDAL, QUITS EXILE

RUSHES TO FAMILY REUNION

"Money Freed Ward," Declares Mother of the Slain Youth

New York, Sept. 29.—Now that Walter S. Ward has been acquitted of the charge of murdering Clarence S. Peters, former marine, his father George S. Ward, multimillionaire baker, has returned from exile.

The elder Ward, president of the Ward Baking Company, returned for a reunion at the home of his other son, Ralph D. Ward, No. 29 East Sixty-fourth street.

Shortly before Governor "Al" Smith started the just-concluded inquiry which resulted in the acquittal of the youthful millionaire, his father dropped from sight.

It was said he feared a family scandal would be exposed and that he would be called as a witness. He was the only adult member of the defendants' family not in the White Plains Court House when the verdict was returned.

Immediately thereafter Samuel R. Miller, of Ward's counsel, rushed a telegram from the courthouse to the elder Ward, said to be in Newark.

Money Freed Ward, Peters' Mother Says

Haverhill, Sept. 29.—In her home at No. 21 Grove street Mrs. Ines O. Peters, mother of Clarence S. Peters, received the news that Walter S. Ward had been acquitted on the charge of murdering her son.

"Money was the only thing that saved him," was the first statement she made when first told the news by a Boston American correspondent.

Mrs. Peters

She said: "It's nothing more than I expected. Expected all the while that they would let him go and I am not surprised. If he can get away after committing a crime, anyone else can, it seems to me. Where would my boy be, if he had done it? He would have been electrocuted long ago and there would have been nothing said about it.

PRAISES PROSECUTORS.

"I am certainly pleased with the manner in which the New York officials handled the case. They could not have done any more. Mr. Sherman, the attorney-general and Mr. Chambers, his assistant, are real men and they did everything possible for me.

"Well, I showed Ward up any way. I let New York know what he was and I let them know that he couldn't kill my son without at least being tried for it. If I hadn't gone to New York, after the first indictment was dismissed, the case would have been dropped and nothing would have been heard about it. It was money that did it, and all that did do it.

"My boy is gone where he cannot do any mischief. I'm glad this crime is on Ward's shoulders instead of mine. I can hold my head up and people can't talk about me when I go by on the streets."

$300,000 SUIT.

Eldridge Peters, father of Clarence, voiced similar sentiments. He declared that if Ward was not convicted, after the way the New York officials dug into the case, that nothing could convict him.

Fred H. Magison, attorney for Mr. and Mrs. Peters, stated that he would bring a $200,000 civil suit against Ward.

VENUS AND ADONIS SOUGHT FOR SHOW

Are you a Venus?
Are you an Apollo?
Or what are you?

Just step in at the Boston Health Shows and let the Boston Tuberculosis Association physicians measure your chest expansion and classify your posture.

Prizes are offered for the man, woman and child whose posture most closely resembles the classic curves and contours of the two most beautifully formed creatures of Greek mythology—Venus and Apollo.

No restrictions are imposed. All are elegible to compete for honors. Physicians will be in attendance to measure your chest expansion from 3 till 5 o'clock Monday and Wednesday afternoon, and on Tuesday and Thursday evenings from 7 to 9 o'clock.

700 VOTE TO STRIKE IN WARWICK, R. I., MILL

Providence, Sept. 29.—Seven hundred operatives of the Warwick Mills in Centreville, have voted to go on strike Monday. Officers of the Arctic Local of the Amalgamated Textile Workers of America, under whose auspices the meeting was held, declared the vote unanimous. The vote was taken after a statement from the Warwick Mills rejected a demand for a wage increase.

STOKES CALLS WIFE WOMAN OF EXPERIENCE

piece her maid exclaimed (correct per MSS.) was given her in 1905.

E: In picture "E" I am sending you, she is seated in the same chair in which she is seated with the mulatto baby in her lap, and in this picture she has this same hat on, and this chair is recognized as a chair that was in one of the two basement rooms of the Everleigh Club next to the buffet, and she is wearing the same bunch of violets, as she wore in the Victoria, so I am inclined to believe the Electric Victoria picture was taken in 1905 and in Chicago.

It would be good proof that she was in Chicago, if we could prove where in Chicago these pictures in the Electric Victoria were taken.

Now in Chicago, seventeen or eighteen years ago, the land looked different and there were telegraph poles then where there are none today; one of her friends states she went out to Washington Park and had them taken there.

E: We are advised that this hat was made by Charles Tobin at a milliner's place on Twenty-second street, Chicago, who was then in partnership with Pauline Barnett, a sister of Barnett, a milliner of No. 616 Michigan avenue, and that Tobin is now in New York city, and that Tobin made most of the hats of the girls at the Everleigh Club. If you could find for me Tobin's New York address from Pauline, I will go and see him at once.

PRIVATE ALBUM

I am having a lot of photos taken from Mrs. Stokes' private album, and tomorrow I will send you a photo of Needham Wright, and a colored man who we do not know who he is. Here are photos of Al Harris and Billy Blacklock.

Now, as for Needham Wright, who died in Denver in 1919. I have two of his pictures, one as a musician and one as a baseball player. I understood he played the piano, coronet, and was quite a dancer, and he looks in both these pictures as quite an athletic fellow. I am told he became infatuated (correct per MSS.) with Mrs. Stokes, but sometime after November 23, 1905, when Mrs. Stokes suddenly left the Everleigh Club when he became infatuated with Eveline Morton, who was also red headed and taller than Mrs. Stokes, and also had an electric just like Mrs. Stokes.

What year that was I do not know, but probably between 1908 and 1910.

I am glad you found the electric charging station between 1904 and 1907, and I am satisfied you will find no record after November 23, 1905, of her having the electric charged under the name of Helen Norwood or Underwood or Mills, but about that time I am told she left Chicago hurriedly together with Camille and Ruth Holmes, who both lived here in New York. Camille had a scar on her cheek, and a cut on the side of her face, and she was said to be Spanish. I find I have both these pictures. Mrs. Stokes brought Camille to my apartment, and introduced her as the wife of a judge from Denver.

As for Phillips, you need not bother about her. She has already made statement and sworn affidavit to us in New York and Chicago, and Fitzsimmons and Shapiro both approached her and made her an offer and we expect to catch them and Blum and Dennenberg's brother again.

As for Annie Johnson, Fitzsimmons and Shapiro saw her and she got the money and said so. She knows everything and we have lost her. They have had her for years. Sorry you did not get the amount of the check Billig cashed for Shapiro.

EXPECTS ARREST

As far as I can make out, Billig has been kept in Chicago to try to keep the witnesses in line. I have all the evidence I need on him, and I got him completely tied up and expect to arrest him when he comes to New York. Their object was to try to get me out of Chicago, I find, they found I had gotten too much.

Mrs. Phillips has not identified any woman for Fitzsimmons nor any one else to take the place of Mrs. Stokes. We had Blum and Dennenberg covered when they went to visit Phillips. The woman they tried to put in at the last trial, and we got her maid's statements that they were going to try it.

She was a notorious woman, but when the time came she backed out for we told her she would be arrested. Now get me the name of the woman you claim they now propose to substitute, and I will know if it is the same woman they tried to run in at the last trial.

Daylight Saving Ends at 2 A. M. Tomorrow

One hour of sleep lost to Daylight Saving last April is to be given back to the people of Massachusetts tomorrow morning when clocks will be turned back an hour.

At 2 o'clock tomorrow morning Daylight Saving expires and the Bay State goes back to Eastern Standard Time—the time recognized by the cows and chickens.

No more mental gymnastics, no more arriving to get the train one hour ahead of time or one hour behind time for from now on. Railroad time will be everybody's time. Play safe by setting back your clock one hour when you retire tonight.

The Friendly Glow

Shorter Daylight

ON September 30th, daylight-saving time will end.

Evenings at home will be longer. But evening at home, in the light of the Friendly Glow, becomes the goal of the day.

EDISON LIGHT

PITY THE 'POOR TELEPHONE OPERATORS'

After going through a nerve-racking strike for a living wage, the Brookline telephone operators are now the targets for complaints because they park their flivvers on streets near the Brookline telephone building.

Tenants of costly apartment houses complained to the police that tradespeople couldn't deliver orders because of the flock of "hello" girls' cars parked at the curbs.

William Vernon, caretaker of the exclusive Altman Block, said the operators think a janitor has no rights. As he pushed two large rolls of rubber cable into position to block off the flivvers today, he asserted he would get steel cables from the navy yard, if necessary.

The telephone building is at Harvard and Babcock streets, in the midst of an apartment house district. Some of the apartments on Harvard street, Babcock street and Bradford terrace rent for $165 a month.

In the rear of the telephone building is an enclosure facing on Bradford terrace. This enclosure has been filled with cars, and tenants of the Bradford terrace apartments declared they inhaled gas fumes all day. Then the machine owners moved their cars to Harvard and Babcock streets, and long lines of them blocked entrances to apartment houses.

Complaint was made and two patrolmen looked into the matter. They saw and acted, and from now on the tenants probably will be able to drive to their own doors.

The operators are highly indignant. A poor working girl has no chance these days, they declare.

Gas Sells at 14.8 Cents

Detroit, Mich., Sept. 29.—The Standard Oil Co., the Sinclair Consolidated Oil Corporation and other leading oil companies today reduced the price of gasoline at service stations two cents to 14.8 cents a gallon.

IMPERILS HUB WATER, SAYS EXPERT

The State Commission on Administration and Finance is saving the State $27 a week by refusing to appoint a coal passer at the pumping station of the Metropolitan water station near the Brookline-Brighton line, at Chestnut Hill.

But this saving is fraught with great danger to the station and to the entire water system of the Metropolitan district, William E. Foss, director of the water division of the Metropolitan District Commission, says so.

2 DO 8 MEN'S WORK.

One man's salary is saved, but the loss of that man's service and presence at the station renders efficiency impossible and endangers the whole system in times of accident or emergency. That is what Mr. Foss, a practical expert, reports to the commission which is in practical charge and yet the loss of this service is allowed to continue in the name of economy by the Administration Commission.

These facts became known through an investigation started by officials of the State Department of the American Legion, who became interested in the situation because two veterans who are employed at the station are obliged to do a lot of extra work, but are not allowed any compensation for it.

FEAR DISASTER.

Practical men who have looked into the situation say there would be "hell to pay" if a big water main should burst, or if one of the night force should meet with an accident while on duty.

There are three working shifts at the pumping station. The third, or night shift, is from 2 o'clock to 7. Some weeks ago the coal passer resigned. No one has been appointed in his place. The two night firemen have to do their own work besides that which he did. The State Commission on Administration and Finance says there is no appropriation out of which to pay a successor to the coal passer.

The firemen say the additional work is too much for them, takes them away from their regular work which should command all of their time and attention and that, if one of them should suffer an accident on the job the other could not possibly attend to the demands of safety and supply.

FREE RIDING MASTER OF GIRL'S CHARGES

Fitchburg, Sept. 29.—Chester P. Cosgrove, twenty-five years, riding master and insurance agent, charged with attacking Miss Elizabeth Preston, nineteen years, No. 260 Summer street, a pretty Normal School student, was discharged by Judge T. F. Gallagher in District Court.

Elizabeth Preston

The attack was alleged to have taken place at the Pearl street fair grounds on September 17, when Cosgrove called at the Normal School and took Miss Preston horseback riding.

FREE TICKETS FOR COMIC CARNIVAL

Two free admissions valued at $1.05 will be given to all persons partstepating in the Boston American comic supplement masquerade in Crescent Gardens ballroom, Revere Beach, next Thursday evening.

The only thing necessary to obtain these free tickets is to properly fill out the coupon on this page and promise to attend the Comic Carnival dressed up as one of the characters in the Boston American's famous comic supplement. Simple, is it not?

Not only will every person taking part in the masquerade be given the tickets but they will also have an equal chance of winning one of the twelve gold awards. A total of $100 is to be given away to the contestants appearing in the grand march at 9:30 p. m. who look most like the funny folks of the American's comics.

Entries for the Comic Carnival are arriving in every mail from all parts of Greater Boston. They are coming from boys, girls, men and women of all ages who are planning on having a rattling good time at no expense except carfare. There will be no charge for checking clothes.

The regular 12 piece Crescent Gardens orchestra directed by Karl Rohde will play for general dancing from 8 to 11:45 p. m. on the night of the carnival. All the latest music will be played.

Radio Weather Is Normal After Dead Period

The mysterious atmospheric conditions that caused radio receiving sets to go dead Thursday night passed away late last night following the rain storm.

Beginning about ten o'clock Thursday night, and lasting until about eleven last night, radio fans fumbled and fussed with their sets in a vain endeavor to find out what was wrong that they were unable to pick upbroadcasting stations.

Receivers that generally picked up stations in a thousand mile radius brought in Shepard's and Amrad only with great difficulty, and some sets wouldn't even pick up WBF.

Late last evening, however, conditions changed in a very brief space of time, and the stations began to roll in in good style.

URGE GRAIN BOARD TO SAVE FARMERS

Washington, Sept. 29 (I.N.S.).—Revival of the United States Grain Corporation with authority to purchase 200,000,000 bushels of wheat in the open market is the plan most favored by the Coolidge administration for the relief of the agriculture industry.

The purchase price would be 1.50 a bushel if the plan is finally adopted. The supporters contend it would bring immediate stabilization to the wheat market and provide immediate financial relief for poverty stricken agriculturists.

Legal barriers may prevent revival of the corporation as it existed during the war, in which case a semi-governmental agency would be created to purchase the wheat with Federal funds.

RESCUERS AT WRECK HALTED BY SNOW

Casper, Wyo., Sept. 29.—Thirty hours after Chicago, Burlington & Quincy train No. 20, en route to Denver from Casper, dropped through a bridge over Cole Creek, ordinarily a dry course, but suddenly changed into a raging torrent by excessive rains, only two bodies of the estimated thirty or more victims have been recovered.

Rain and snow forced rescue parties to abandon efforts to remove any of the bodies from the five coaches which still are submerged in a charging current 75 feet wide. It is feared that some of the bodies have been washed down stream by the rapidly moving water.

The body of D. E. Schultz of Denver, baggageman, was recovered after it had been washed clear of the wreckage and rescuers rigged a rope bridge to it.

Professional divers among the volunteers who went to the scene of the wreck offered to try to break into the watery tombs formed by the submerged couches, but railroad officials regarded the plan as too hazardous.

BIG SENDOFF AS LLOYD GEORGE STARTS TRIP

London, Sept. 29. (I.N.S.)—Former Premier David Lloyd George, accompanied by his wife and daughter, departed today for America amidst scenes of enthusiasm that recalled the days when he was in the heyday of his power.

"I appreciate your kindness in safely seeing me off the premises," shouted the former premier from the car window, to cheers of the crowd. "Take care of the old country while I am gone."

The cheering gave way to laughter.

The former premier received an unprecedented send-off. The streets abutting the railway station were jammed. All the Liberal members of the old Lloyd George Government were on hand including Winston Churchill, former Irish Secretary Sir Hamar Greenwood and Thomas MacNamara.

The platform of the train shed was packed with personal friends. Thousands of city workers delayed getting to their offices in hope of getting a glimpse of the Welsh statesman.

The salon of the railway car occupied by the Lloyd George family was piled high with fruits and flowers sent by friends and admirers from all parts of Great Britain.

Mrs. Lloyd George wore a blue traveling costume and a brown hat. Miss Megan Lloyd George, the daughter, was dressed in navy blue.

The former Premier sported a new traveling coat and looked to be in the pink of condition. He was in the best of spirits and joked merrily with friends. He said he had a great stock of books with him and was anticipating the greatest experience of his life in seeing America.

As the train steamed out there was an extraordinary scene. Hundreds rushed down the platform straining their eyes for a final view of the ex-Premier. There was a mighty shout of "goodbye and God be with you."

Mrs. Lloyd George intimated to friends that she is going to "boss" the American tour of her famous husband. She is not going to allow him to wear out his strength.

PLANS TO RELIEVE TRAFFIC CONGESTION

Map illustrates suggestions made to Boston American for solving one phase of the congested traffic problems. It covers Boston bound traffic entering Charlestown from the north and west. On left is a detour for automobiles, and in centre and on right a rerouting of electric car lines.

TRAFFIC SUGGESTION NO. 4.

The Boston American today prints another suggestion for simplifying Boston's traffic problem. A reader cites congestion occasioned by homecomers from the North Shore and offers the following as a palliative:

"Why not route automobiles entering Charlestown from the North and West into Cambridge via Austin, Chapman, Prison Point and Commercial streets to Cambridge Bridge?

"Motorists could continue through Cambridge to suburban destination or return to Boston via either Cambridge Bridge or Harvard Bridge, the latter if safety permits.

"Cars could be permitted to enter Boston proper and immediately routed northeast in Commercial street to Atlantic avenue, Fort Hill square, High street, thence to Albany street and Harrison avenue to the South End to work out a route convenient to destination.

"Other cars could be routed southwest on Causeway and Leverett streets to Charles street."

What do you think about it? Write us.

In the Boston American series of articles on solving Boston's downtown traffic jam a photograph showing a line of automobiles behind a horse-drawn vehicle on School street was recently printed. Comes this:

"I see in your paper a picture of a horse and team coming down School street. You claim that team is blocking the street. I, being the driver of the team, claim no. If the other team at the curb was not there, the autos could pass me. Besides he is breaking the rules by stopping his team on that side of the street. And besides if private cars were not allowed to park in all these streets, there would be less tieups with teams." The letter was from D. J. Sheehan, No. 218 Tremont street.

From G. M. De Young, No. 120 Cottage street, Everett, in the same mail: "Regarding the photograph in the American please notice that the grinding wagon is delivering freight, while the other side is lined with pleasure cars. The remedy is to allow limited parking to commercial vehicles only from 8 to 5 o'clock daily, pleasure cars keep moving. If a business man has a runabout for business reasons, let him have a commercial registration, but no two registrations on the same car."

DRAMA'S BEST KNOWN COP MOVES INTO HIGH FINANCE

By NICHOLAS YOUNG

THE neighboring borough of Somerville has enjoyed two major distinctions for a good many years. Primarily it is a good place to hang up your hat after a day's hard work, and, if your politics are inclined that way, you can always feel certain of a comfortable Republican majority. Its other distinction has been artistic rather than material, for it has been notable among the towns of the country as the home of the drama's most polished policeman—a plain stage cop, who has made plays famous and authors rich. And now there is threatened dissolution of Somerville's importance, for Frank Monroe has stopped trailing crooks in the interest of dramatic art, and, gosh dern it, he has moved away to New York.

PLAYING COPS FOR AUTHORS HAS KEPT MONROE BUSY ALL HIS LIFE

FOR more years than most of us care to admit Frank Monroe has been a stage cop—a plain clothesman that seemed to bring the drama nearer to every-day life, and who always supplied a new thrill with each succeeding engagement. Whenever a new crook play was written you knew that Monroe would somehow be a part of it, wearing square toed shoes and sending chills into the hearts of all evildoers. Now he's through and for the first time in upward of twenty years he is lending his aid to theatre uplift by showing that a good policeman can also be a pretty effective business man if he has the right author behind him. Monroe is with "Thank-U" at the Hollis, playing a part that was written for him by Winchell Smith. The actor confides that he was engaged before the play was written and that Smith promised he wouldn't be a policeman.

"It has taken 20 years to escape," says Mr. Monroe.

"IT was Bill Smith's contrite heart that brought about my escape from the cop roles I had been doing for so long a time," said Mr. Monroe. "Bill (his friends call him Bill) was responsible for my first success as a stage policeman and I became a marked man among the managers. That was the penalty of doing a job too well, and I soon discovered that I was accepted only on my face value as a strong type in one role and was completely ignored and discredited for any other quality of stage service. Smith always said he was sorry for me and I believed him, but that didn't help the situation until he wrote the part I am now playing in 'Thank-U.' And I waited nearly twenty years for that. When Smith and Paul Armstrong wrote 'Via Wireless' I was out of a job, and Smith, who had been a friend of many years, insisted upon my playing the role of Bradley, a plain clothes cop. I was proud of the engagement, but it sealed my doom, and season after season I tramped the stage of the nation running down actor criminals. Of course, there was gratification in doing such roles as Doyle in 'Alias Jimmy Valentine' and Sam Cloyd in 'The Voice in the Dark,' which were exceedingly popular with playgoers. But they kept me on the police end of the drama when I knew I could do other things equally well. But the managers couldn't be made to see it. Why, I was engaged at one time by Al Woods to play a policeman in a new crook play, and we had gone into rehearsals with it when something happened that induced Woods to withdraw the production and dismiss the company. Woods sent for me. 'I'm sorry, Frank,' he said, 'but there isn't anything I can offer you; I haven't a manuscript in the office with a policeman in it. I hope you have luck in getting an early engagement.'"

THAT, in substance, was Monroe's experience season upon season; always busy with good engagements, but always a policeman. "When Smith sent for me and said he was going to write a part for me in a new play, he explained that my career had been on his conscience. 'You know, Frank,' he said, 'it was I who made you a policeman in "Via Wireless," and now, by heck, I'm going to undo the wrong and make you a business man.'" And that is the story of a stage policeman who has used up twenty years to live down a professional past.

ACTOR FROM SQUANTUM DRESSED WITH E. H. SOTHERN IN MUSEUM DAYS

WHILE Somerville may have lost its principal actor with the departure of Frank Monroe, Squantum is still boastfully proud of its own son, who has taken the drama by the throat and made it behave. By a curious coincidence, this actor, too, is giving his art to "Thank-U." One of the delights of this comedy is the fine impersonation of the rube church worryman contributed by George A. Schiller. It is character drawing of the highest order. It is almost suspiciously natural, or would be if you didn't know Schiller was no rube. Mr. Schiller is no child in experience, as you discover when he tells you that he and Eddie Sothern dressed in the same room at the Boston Museum thirty-five years ago. It might have been forty years ago, but Schiller wanted to be on the safe side, and asked me to keep it down to thirty-five. Probably Schiller didn't amount to much in the old Museum days—but neither did Sothern. For years he fluttered about this country in musical comedy, never singing a note, but always yielding good performances and making things safe for future engagements. Then, one day, Winchell Smith, who seems to be a principal part of the machinery in the John Golden office, saw Schiller at work and decided that he needed him for a new play, still unwritten and not yet named. He wanted him for a small town type, narrow-minded and virtuous and always eager to please and receive the commendation of the next man higher up in the community. He fitted into the role so thoroughly that at the final rehearsal of "Thank-U"—the dress rehearsal—Smith called Schiller aside and told him he needn't make up. "Don't put on a bit of grease paint," directed Smith; "go on and play the part just as you walk into the theatre from the street. You're too good without makeup to risk spoiling a good thing with a pot of paint." And never, during the two long seasons of "Thank-U" has Schiller once put even a pencil to his eyebrows. "It seems a little irregular," explained Schiller, "but it has advantages. I'm the first man out of the theatre after a performance." You interrupted him with a question. "Yes, sir," he answered, "I am still a resident of Squantum. Of course, it isn't much of a Winter place, but I'm never home in the Winter; but it's great in July and August."

Mr. Schiller doesn't have to make up for rube role.

Screen Actor Tried Law Before Taking Stage

Charles Ogle, who plays the role of the honest but easily be-fooled leader of the caravan in "The Covered Wagon," shown at the Majestic Theatre, is one of the most sincere and convincing of screen actors. Many will recall his kindly garage in "Two Many Million," his Justice of the Peace in "The Squaw Man" and his circus ring-master in "Under the Top."

Mr. Ogle was born in Ohio. His father thought he ought to be a minister, but finally consented to let him study law. He received his A.B. and LL.B. degrees from the University of Illinois and practiced law in Chicago with success, but his real ambition was for the stage.

Eventually he followed his first inclination and became an actor, appearing in support of Hilda Spong. About twelve years ago he first acted on the screen, and since then he has never left the studios.

"LIGHT THAT FAILED"

A change in the order of attractions at the St. James has been made necessary whereby the production of Booth Tarkington's "Rose Briar" is delayed until the week of October 15. For the week of October 8, "The Light That Failed," from Kipling's book by the same name, will be offered.

NEXT WEEK'S NEW BILLS

SHUBERT—Balieff's Chauve-Souris, led by Nikita Balieff, most famous of artist clowns. First presentation in this country outside of New York. Included in the program will be the famous "Parade of Wooden Soldiers," "The See-Saw" and "Zarfa-Zarlanitsa." Reported by critics of New York as colorful, brilliant and novel entertainment.

* * *

ST. JAMES—"Six Cylinder Love," a comedy of extravagant living by William Anthony McGuire. Presented here in the Spring at the Tremont, where it enjoyed a full measure of popularity. Houston Richards will appear in the role played originally by Ernest Truex. Evelyn Bushnell, Mark Kent and Walter Gilbert will have important parts.

* * *

GAYETY (Burlesque)—Harry Hastings' "Silk Stocking Revue," with Frank Silk, a tramp comedian, carrying the burden of comedy, and Helen Kennedy contributing the principal musical numbers. Other features will be Earl Root and Billie La Monte in dancing novelties; the Busch Sisters, Bob Carney and Jean Carr, the Roletta Duo and the usual sparkling chorus.

* * *

PARK—"Pioneer Trails," a picture story of the California gold rush days, with Cullen Landis and Alice Calhoun in the leading roles. A spectacular picture revealing the trials and hardships of cross-country travel in wagon trains, with an Indian attack to enliven the story and give added dramatic interest.

* * *

SOMERVILLE—Tommie Martelle, female impersonator, in a comedy called "The Fashion Girl." Mr. Martelle will appear in several new sartorial creations, and the comedy will be spiced with a number of songs.

EVEN THIEVES HAD THEIR KINGS

Students of sociological conditions find much in similarity in modern life with that of many ages. And when we read in the daily press of gang leaders who plan and superintend criminal acts the expression can be fallen back upon that things have always been the same. True, different degrees have been obtained in the matter of thievery. There have been times when it flourished and attained its highest degree of perfection. Such a time was in the reign of Louis XI. in France during the period in which it suited Victor Hugo's "The Hunchback of Notre Dame." And the personage, Clopin, prominent in the Universal production made from the story that is now showing at Tremont Temple, is no vagrant conception of the novelist, nor is it overdrawn in the power that this medieval king of thieves and beggars exerts in the action of the drama.

For in that period when social conditions of continental Europe, and France in particular, were in such a turmoil from reaction of more than a century of almost incessant warfare society was pretty thoroughly disorganized. Through taxes imposed by the crafty and exacting Louis the populace was in the throes of deepest poverty and the subject of every ramification of graft. The powerful nobles stole from the poor with impunity and evil and corruption were the ruling spirits of all social life. Beggary was in the ascendancy and the short step from beggary to thievery was easily bridged through the profusion of practitioners.

So when Clopin rallies his army of thieves and beggars to rescue his ward, Esmeralda, from the clutches of the King's forces there ensues a battle of major calibre and one that furnished the makers of this production one of the most thrilling of scenes.

CHERKASSKY RECITAL

The recital of Shura Cherkassky, the boy pianist of eleven in Symphony Hall tomorrow afternoon, may prove his only Boston appearance for a long while, for this remarkable little artist is making but few public appearances. His Boston program, which is drawn from an astounding large repertoire, will include Handel's Variations in D minor, Reconaissez by Beethoven, Weber's Invitation to the Dance, Prelude and Scherzo of Mendelssohn, Etude, Fantaisie, Impromptu and Waltz by Chopin, Barcarolle and Polka by Rachmaninoff, Prelude Pathetique, his own composition, and Liszt's Thirteenth Hungarian Rhapsody.

D'AVINO BAND

Signor Alfonso D'Avino and his concert band, after completing an extensive tour, will give a concert at the Boston Arena Sunday evening, October 14. In addition to the band there will be several well known soloists.

Gayety Girl Has Own Idea of Women Jurors

"I see," says Helen Kennedy, "that Massachusetts is considering whether or not women should serve on juries. And, in this connection, I read that some prominent women have claimed that women would be better jurors than men in cases of pretty girl offenders, because men are too susceptible to feminine charms. Well, I don't quite agree," Miss Kennedy is pretty herself and, in her position as prima donna now with "Silk Stocking Revue," at the Gayety Theatre next week, has been in position to judge the attitude of men and of women toward feminine performers on the stage.

"So far as professional viewpoint goes," says Miss Kennedy, "I think that women are as fair and as appreciative as men in giving entertainers every chance. There are more and more women patrons of burlesque, as is well known. They make good audiences from the entertainers' standpoint. They are as fair as the men.

"So, why should women be any more critical as jurors than men are, or any less so. If they wish to have women jurors—and the women desire it—why all right. But let us not expect infallible juries of women, any more than of men. Both are human."

PLAYS THAT REMAIN

Who's Who and What's What Concerning Holdover Attractions at the Theatres

By NICHOLAS YOUNG

"Loyalties" at the Tremont. (Second week.) John Galsworthy at his best in the most inspiring drama that has crossed the ocean in years. An intellectual as well as a dramatic treat.

* * *

"Sally, Irene and Mary" at the Wilbur. (Ninth week.) A little of this and a little of that from the sidewalks of New York, with Eddie Dowling at the wheel.

Ziegfeld Follies at the Colonial. (Third week.) Exposing Mr. Ziegfeld at his old tricks of creating a wonderful show with pretty girls in thin raiment and tons of scenery.

* * *

"Runnin' Wild" at the Selwyn. (Fifth week.) An all-colored musical revue, generously sprinkled with jazz melody and quaint negro comedy.

* * *

"Thank-U" at the Hollis. (Second week.) Rural comedy that depends upon a minister and his vestry for both its humor and its drama. A good entertainment for home folk.

* * *

"The Cat and the Canary" at the Plymouth. (Fifth week.) Revealing a spooky house, mysterious action and an evening of thrills and chills. Runs largely to excitement.

CRANE DRAWS THRILL FROM RUSSIANS

By DR. FRANK CRANE.

I don't want now to speak of the Russian government, of Bolshevism or Sovietism or whiskers. I wish to speak of the people. Bolshevism is as much a removable excrescence as whiskers and as dispensable as a soiled suit of clothes. I speak of human beings.

I have recently seen them, seen right into the heart of them, and I wish to testify that I am thoroughly in love with them.

I went to see the performances which is called "Chauve-Souris," meaning "Bat," a fanciful name borrowed from the Moscow Theatre and having nothing to do with the performance. There is about as much sense in calling this show "Chauve-Souris" as in calling you George W. Peckinpaw, in which there is no sense at all.

It is pure play. Americans cannot play like that, with such perfect abandon, with such uncensored self-expression, and yet with such consummate art.

It is the most child-like thing imaginable, and whatever is child-like and well enough done to captivate us, is worth while.

The show was in Russian and I did not understand a word, which was a great relief, for if it had been in English, I should have tried to understand and should have been irritated.

But the language was the universal language of mankind, the play of child-like people.

There was dancing. I had about made up my mind that I do not like dancing and thought it was because I was getting old and cranky, but I discovered that that is not the reason. I do not like society dancing, I see now, because it is artificial posing. It pretends to be plain and is not. But the dancing at this performance was the kind of dancing children do. The actors threw themselves into their work soul foremost and it gave you the same sensation of gladness you get when you see children running about laughing and leaping, or when you see little lambs jumping up with all four feet at once.

SAN CARLO OPERA

As the date draws near for the three weeks season of the San Carlo Grand Opera Company at the Boston Opera House, to begin Monday evening, November 5, more definite announcements are being made. The repertoire for the first week will be as follows:

Monday, "Rigoletto"; Tuesday, "Tosca"; Wednesday matinee, "Martha"; Wednesday evening, "Aido"; Thursday, "Madame Butterfly"; Friday, "The Jewels of the Madonna"; Saturday matinee, "Carmen," and Saturday evening, "Il Trovatore."

PUBLIC DEBATE

A public debate of what may be of nation-wide importance will take place between the Universities of Harvard and Oxford, England, in Symphony Hall on Monday evening, October 8. The situation in the Ruhr Valley is the chosen subject and will be of particular interest on account of the stand which England has taken in regard to France. The Oxonian team will include G. A. Gardner, A. Gordon Bagnall, and J. D. Woodruff.

PICTURES and VARIETY

B. F. KEITH'S—Vaudeville: Will Cressy, popular rube character artist and Blanche Dayne in "The End of a Perfect Troupe;" Robb Wilton in "Sherlock Bill;" Bekefi's Theatre Grotesk, a novelty from Russia; Julius Tannen, a chatterbox comedian; George Moore and Girls in "A Little of This and That," and other features.

ORPHEUM—Mae Murray in "The French Doll" presented as the film feature with Lew Cantor and his company in "Everybody Step," as the principal vaudeville attraction. Other picture features include a two-reel comedy and a news special. Sunday night concert of vaudeville and pictures.

LOEW'S STATE—D. W. Griffith's production of "The White Rose," featuring Ivor Novello, a young English actor. Others in the cast are Carol Dempster, Neil Hamilton, Porter Strong and Lucille La Verne. The companion picture will be "Pitfalls of a Big City." Special Sunday night bill of vaudeville and pictures.

BOSTON—Priscilla Dean in "Drifting," supported by Wallace Beery and Matt Moore. The J. Francis Haney song and dance revue heads the vaudeville section.

WALDRON'S CASINO—(Burlesque) "All Aboard," with "Shorty" McAllister and Tom Senna in the comedy roles. The burlesque show is supplemented by vaudeville and motion pictures, making a continuous performance.

CAPITOL—"Broadway Gold," featuring Elaine Hammerstein, and "Her Reputation," with May McAvoy.

SCOLLAY SQ.—"The Midnight Alarm" will be the film feature, with seven acts of vaudeville to fill out the bill.

OLYMPIA—"Potash and Perlmutter," with Barney Bernard and Alexander Carr. Five acts of vaudeville headed by "A Full House of Melody."

CENTRAL SQ.—Gloria Swanson in "Bluebeard's 8th Wife" and five vaudeville features. Change of bill on Thursday.

STRAND—"Bluebeard's 8th Wife," featuring Gloria Swanson, and "The Empty Cradle," with Mary Alden and Harry Morey.

MODERN AND BEACON—"The Eternal Three," with Hobart Bosworth, Claire Windsor and Bessie Love; also Tom Mix in "The Lone Star Ranger" and Round 3 of the "Leather Pushers."

HOWARD—(Burlesque) Harry Fields and his "Hello, Jake" girls, with Violet Hudson, a Boston girl, prominent in the cast. Also vaudeville and pictures.

BOWDOIN SQ.—"Human Wreckage," with Mrs. Wallace Reid and "Six Days," another feature film. Vaudeville included in the bill.

SUNDAY CONCERTS

Three great artists will appear in Symphony Hall on Sunday afternoons in October, namely, Chaliapin, the great Russian bass, on October 14; DePachmann, pianist, who is making his farewell tour of America, on October 21, and Ernestine Schumann-Heink on October 28.

Torture With Enjoyment In This Thrill Play

When you have felt, sympathetically speaking, that icy breath from the secret panel and that clawlike hand reaching for your throat, and then give your yell of terrified anxiety in chorus with a thousand or more other startled onlookers you have enjoyed one of the thrills of the performance of "The Cat and the Canary," now at the Plymouth Theatre. When you have followed intensely the whole series of these thrills, yourself, and learn the danger spots of the entire—then just observe the behavior of the others in the audience. It is real fun. The outburst of the "gripped" spectators range from an hysterical titter, usually quickly drowned in an indignant and louder "H-s-s-sh!" to an actual shriek of terror from all parts of the house whenever the danger to the little heroine seems unescapable.

McCORMACK RECITAL

John McCormack, the Irish tenor, will make two appearances in Symphony Hall on Sunday afternoon, October 7, and Tuesday evening, October 9, in entirely different programs. He will be assisted by Lauri Kennedy, 'cellist, and Edwin Schneider, pianist.

Miss Hughes Only Girl of Race in City Concerts

Revella Hughes, one of the prima donnas of "Runnin' Wild" at the Selwyn, has earned the distinction of being the only girl of her race to be selected by Mayor Hylan of New York city to appear in one of the municipal concerts given in Central Park. Miss Hughes is a native of Huntington, W. Va. When she completed her studies at the Howard University she prepared for the concert stage, being tutored for this work by Walter Kiesewetter, and appeared in many of the Southern cities. She was a member of the "Shuffle Along" company during its engagement at the Selwyn Theatre last season.

SYMPHONY REHEARSALS NEXT WEEK

The season of regular Boston Symphony concerts in Symphony Hall will open a week from next Friday and Saturday, (October 12 and 13). Pierre Monteux is expected to arrive from Europe Monday and will start rehearsals for the opening.

The opening program will include Beethoven's Seventh Symphony Brahms' Variations on a Theme, by Haydn, "The Danced Poem," "La Peri," by Dukas, and the Dances from Richard Strauss' opera, "Salome." This season will be the fifth and last under Mr. Monteux's leadership.

The soloists to appear at the regular series of concerts will include, as singers, Sierid Onegin, Elizabeth Rethberg, Eva Gauthier, Marya Freund, Vera Janacopulos, and Roland Hayes. The pianists are to be Moriz Rosenthal, Harold Bauer, Mitja Nikisch and E. Robert Schmitz. Pablo Casals, the 'cellist, and Lionel Tertis, the English master of the viola, will also appear, and, as violinists, Jacques Thibaud and Carl Flesch.

Elizabeth Caswell Weds John Mitchell After Jilting Some 'Good Catches'

WEDDING BELLS finally chimed today for beautiful Elizabeth Robbins Caswell, long known in exclusive society as "Boston's most engaged girl."

The lucky man, and he is lucky, as he has won the most sought after deb in the smart set, is John Mitchell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter J. Mitchell of Manchester.

They were married in St. John's Church, Beverly Farms. A reception followed at Round Plains Farms, home of Mrs. John Caswell, the bride's mother. Society turned out for the wedding.

It is a thrill for society to see Elizabeth Caswell finally married. For three years she has upset the apple cast of the dowagers who love to "make matches" by suddenly jilting some "splendid catches."

Last of these was Jasper Morgan, nephew of J. Pierpont Morgan. He was "ditched" without warning and society gasped while "Bess" or "Sister" as Miss Caswell's chums call her fled to Europe with "Mamma."

Miss Caswell made her debut in June, 1918, at a ball given in her honor by an aunt at Huntington, L. I. She has been prominent since in social events at Bar Harbor, New York and along the North Shore.

The Caswell peace at Beverly Farms—which Harold Vanderbilt leases for two months during the Summer—is known as "Round Plain Farm," and where the wedding reception will be held. It was last Summer that enterprising Miss. Caswell and her daughter opened a novel little shop at "Round Plain Farm," where they sold neatly monogramed linen sweaters. These pieces of wearing apparel quickly became the rage among the Shore's feminine contingent, and daughter did a thriving business.

Some of the North Shore colonists planning to attend both the Mitchell-Caswell and Mandell-Clark nuptials will just about be able to make connections.

MISS ELIZABETH CASWELL
Miss Caswell this afternoon became the bride of John Mitchell, the ceremony taking place at St. John's Church, Beverly Farms.

THE ceremony which will transform popular Miss Geraldine Clark, daughter of the Robert J. Clarks of Beacon street, into Mrs. Thomas Proctor Mandell takes place at high noon today in St. Paul's Church, Brookline. The reception will be held at the studio of the bride's grandfather, Desmond Fitz-Gerald, which is located on Washington street, Brookline.

Miss Eleanor Fitz-Gerald has been selected as maid of honor, the bridesmaids group being composed of the Misses Martha F. Houser, Eleanor Batchelder, Lucy Fiske, Eleanor Goodwin, Helen McElwain, Marion Williams, Eleanor Seavey and Dorothy B. Smith, the latter a Chicago girl.

Tom Mandell is one of the best polo players on the Myopia team. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. George Snell Mandell of Commonwealth avenue and Hamilton, where their place, known as "Four Corners," is always the scene of jolly times for the North Shore's younger coterie.

Gifts from Unknown Donors Mystify Girl

Marguerite Zender, the charming Mary of "Sally, Irene and Mary," at the Wilbur, loves Boston. Many theatrical visitors have said the same thing, but Miss Zender has gone so far as to compare it to the West, from whence she comes, and this should prove beyond doubt that she does think that Boston is a pretty nice place.

"Boston's audiences and people are so kind and hospitable," said Miss Zender. "They always make me think of the West and her people. Some may say that it is only because our play is so successful here, but I have always found Boston the same. I have played here many times, you know. My last engagement here was in 'Angel Face.'"

Miss Zender is very busy answering hundreds of notes which come to her from young and old who have seen her, and from trying to trace the senders of all kinds of gifts. The latest acquisition to Miss Zender's "gift corner" is a tiny stuffed dog, called "Alexander," just because it is the only name which seemed to signify the dignity which the little dog possesses. There was no card with Alexander, and Miss Zender is anxious to locate the thoughtful donor.

Famous Author Once Good Newspaperman

A. E. M. Hutchinson, author of "If Winter Comes," of which William Fox has made a photoplay, now being shown at the Fenway, like many other novelists, started as a newspaper man and was once editor-in-chief of the London Daily Graphic. He is said to be a hard and steady worker when engaged on a novel, writing all morning and very often all evening. He has the reputation of being supersensitive to critical comment. His first novel was "The Happy Warrior," followed by "Once Aboard the Lugger," "The Clean Heart" and "If Winter Comes." The remarkable sale and popularity of this latter book is literary history. The story takes its title from a line by Shelley: "O Wind, if Winter comes, can Spring be far behind?"

The phrase "if Winter comes" has become a national expression in England and is heard as widely and frequently as the "cheerio" of war days.

REAL PIONEER CABIN IN FILM

In searching for locations for "Pioneer Trails," the production which will be shown at the Park Theatre on Monday, one of the Vitagraph scouts came upon an isolated cabin in the mountains far off the beaten trails. The hut had all the earmarks of having been deserted for at least a year. The scout opened the door and peered in; a wealth of pioneer furniture and furnishings met his gaze. A bed of rough boughs, rustic chairs, rag carpets, crocheted counterpanes and other bits of feminine handiwork foretold that this was once the home of a prospecter's family.

Inquiry disclosed the house belonged to one of the early settlers of California, a man who with his family had taken up a Californian government grant in 1852, and had lived and died on the location, leaving a daughter. His wife had died when the girl was about seventeen and the child had become housekeeper for her father. The two remained unmolested through the long period of years. Every month the old man made a trip to the village for supplies and occasionally the daughter accompanied him.

After the old man died the daughter, then a woman well advanced in years, lived the life of a recluse for a while and then mysteriously disappeared. No one knew where she went. Several mysterious stories were circulated by the superstitious and the house had been given a wide berth as being haunted.

Vitagraph obtained permission to use the furnishings for scenes in "Pioneer Trails," and the result photographically exceeded all expectations.

SISTINE CHOIR

The choir from the Sistine Chapel in Rome is coming to America for the first time in history, and is to visit Boston for a single appearance in Symphony Hall on Tuesday evening, October 16. The tour is being made by special permission of His Holiness the Pope. The program dates back to Palestrina, orthodox composer of the Vatican in the sixteenth century. Much of the ritual music to be heard exists only in manuscript in the archives of the Sistine Chapel.

PAVLOWA COMING

Pavlowa, with her Paris and London organization, sailed for America on September 27th. Pavlowa's American tour opens at the Manhattan Opera House, New York, on Monday, October 8th, where two weeks will be dated. She will come to the Boston Opera House for eight performances, beginning Monday, October 29th.

COPLEY BALLROOM

The opening of the new Copley ballroom at No. 477 Stuart street, near Huntington avenue, marks an epoch in the amusement history of this city. Bert Meyers is in charge of the orchestra that provides the music. Dansants are held regularly on Wednesday, Friday and Saturday evenings.

FILMS SHOW JAPANESE HORROR

Motion pictures of the great Japanese earthquake disaster are released in International News which is being shown at leading picture theatres today. They include extraordinary views of the final burning of Tokyo and many other thrilling scenes. The films were shipped to Seattle by steamer from Tokyo and Yokohama via Kobe, and from Seattle sent to San Francisco by seaplane, thence eastward by airplane, beating all of International's Newsreel competitors by many hours.

All of the pictures shown were made by International's cameraman at Yokohama, Toyko and Kobe, and International's man at Toyko was right on the job, for he got what no one else got, the actual burning of the city.

Among the more remarkable parts of the film are those portions showing Yokohama harbor, which was completely destroyed, with wrecked steamers blazing furiously. These extraordinary scenes were made immediately following the earthquake. Other scenes show the frightful living conditions which thousands of the survivors were compelled to endure. Half-famished victims are shown living in the most dismal hovels.

STRIKING PRESSMAN VOTE TO GO BACK

New York, Sept. 29.—Striking pressmen recorded an overwhelming vote at a meeting at Beethoven Hall to return to work under the contract drawn up by President Berry of the International Union.

New cards from the International will be issued to members of the defunct Local No. 25. The vote was scarcely more than a formality. Many of the pressmen had already made application for union cards before the meeting. Newspapers went back to their normal editions. Charges of mismanagement of union funds were filed with Assistant District Attorney Pecora by attorneys representing a group of members of the defunct local.

2 KILLED, 15 HURT, BY BULGARIAN BOMB

London, Sept. 29. (I.N.S.)—Two persons were killed and fifteen wounded by a bomb thrown at a fair near Sofia, said a central dispatch from Sofia today.

BLACKMAIL PLOT BARES ROMANCE OF GLORIA'S MA

MOTHER OF STAR WAS WOOED BY EMPLOYE

Latter Claims Probe Is Attempt to Balk Marriage; Shows Love Notes

(By Cosmopolitan News Service.)
Copyright 1923.

Los Angeles, Cal., Sept. 29.—Admitting that he was the man grilled by the district attorney's office in an alleged blackmail plot against Gloria Swanson, Marshall Neilan and Mrs. Adelaide Burns, mother of the film star, Howard E. Watts, a young real estate operator, today declared the investigation was an effort to break up a romance between himself and Mrs. Burns.

Watt declared that he attempted no blackmail and that the assertion that he did is false.

Watt, who first became an inmate of the Burns household while the late Mathew P. Burns was alive in the capacity of nurse and attendant to the infirm shoe man, has remained there ever since, according to his own admission.

DISPLAYS LOVE LETTERS.

"In September, 1921, a few months after the death of Mr. Burns, his widow and I became engaged. Not only were we sweethearts, but we were inseparable.

"During the last two years and up to the time I received a telegram from Mrs. Burns, when she was in New York, we were perfect lovers, as noted as her confidential friend and advisor during all of those years that I lived at her home."

In proof of his assertions that a deep romance had existed between himself and the mother of the screen luminary, Watt, in the office of his attorney, Edgar Martin, produced a mass of love letters, numbering more than a dozen, all of which were couched in the most affectionate terms.

"Remember your promises. Don't drink and be true to mamma.

"With love, mother."

GAVE HIM $1,000 CHECK.

Other letters written in the same affectionate strain ended with "to my mother."

Other evidence of the alleged friendship between Watt and Mrs. Burns was produced in the transfer of a high priced limousine, which the young man claimed and Mrs. Burns admitted, had been given to him.

Among other gifts which he claimed Mrs. Burns had given him was a check for $1000. She also admitted having made him a present of this sum, but claimed that she had done it for the purpose of remunerating him for services rendered.

10,000 BABIES FOR HEALTH SHOW

To say that the executive committee of the Boston Health Show to be held in Mechanics Building October 8 to 13 is worried over the number of babies which the Boston American has registered for the Better Babies' conference at the show is to state the case mildly.

Last night the committee declared that the American had already sent 3,000 more applications on its coupons than the health show expected to handle.

PLAN FOR 10,000.

State Health Commissioner Kelley and City Health Commissioner Mahoney believe that if the mothers of 10,000 babies want a physical examination of their precious little ones the time, the place, and the examiners can be found.

They believe, also, that the making of such an examination, the discovery of physical defects in the little children, the consultation with experts on child welfare, and the advice of the physicians to whom the mothers will be referred will be a great step forward in health conditions.

Dr. Mahoney held two conferences with Dr. Drake of the health show. They discussed the problem but are not yet ready to announce their plans.

FIFTY-EIGHT SPECIALISTS.

In the meantime fifty-eight of the leading child specialists of Boston are getting ready for their work in the health show baby house. Never before has such a gathering of experts on baby health been organized for the welfare of a community.

Today is printed a list of the eye specialists who will take part in the baby examination and a list of the dental experts who will examine the teeth of the babies and advise the mothers regarding oral hygiene.

No further guarantee of the high quality of the examination to be given to the first babies who have enrolled on the Boston American blanks is needed than the following list of names of examiners.

ASK CUBA TO HOLD UP NEW R. R. LAW

Washington, Sept. 29 (U.N.S.)—The State Department has asked President Zayas of Cuba to withhold his signature from the Tarafa Railroad Consolidation Bill until a further investigation of the terms of the measure can be made by the United States, it was learned here today. The bill, which was opposed by American sugar interests in Cuba, has been passed by both Houses of the Cuban Congress.

R. I. 'DOPE KING' SEIZED BY RAIDERS

Providence, Sept. 29.—Louis F. Bowen of Point street, called the "drug king" of Rhode Island, was arrested by three narcotic agents from Boston in a raid that netted them thousands of dollars' worth of cocaine and morphine.

Several hundred dollars in bills of small denomination testified to a rushing business. Mr. and Mrs. Fred Russell of Claverick street and Fred Fuller of Dexter street, also were arrested, making eight in twenty-four hours.

Fuller was taken in Haywood Park, the agents said, while selling morphine to Mrs. Russell. Her husband was arrested at home later and a quantity of morphine was confiscated. Russell had an ingenious pocket note book which concealed a hypodermic needle.

Agents Kelly, Flynn and Yutronich went to Bowman's home and found him surrounded by drugs done up in "decks" ready for retail sale.

The three men and the woman were to be taken before a United States Commissioner today.

MEMORIAL ROAD FOR HARDING PLANNED

Washington, Sept. 29.—A road of remembrance for Warren G. Harding, beautified by trees planted by 6,000 school children is to be built in Allen County, Ohio. The Harding highway from Lima will be planted for 26 miles, Charles Lathrop Pack, president of the American Tree Association announced today and later it is planned to extend the road from Marion to Canton, home of William McKinley. Mrs. Harding has been invited to plant the first tree.

WORKERS WILLING TO TRY IT

Manufacturers' Threat to Move to Other Cities Results in Conference

Lynn shoe manufacturers and union workers will meet next Tuesday night in an attempt to ratify an agreement on a revision of wages which would make it possible to turn out cheaper shoes in Lynn at a profit.

The proposed agreement is a voluntary action by the members of the Amalgamated Shoe Workers of America who have expressed a willingness to take a reduction in wages in order that the manufacturers may continue to do business in Lynn.

Many of the manufacturers have threatened to move to other cities because they contend they can not continue to operate at a profit under present wage and labor conditions. They have pointed out that other shoe centers in New England have been turning out cheaper shoes in large volumes, while the Lynn plants have been busy only a few months in the year.

The agreement suggested by the workers would result in a leg cut on each individual operation in shoe making. Under the plan Lynn would continue to make high grade shoes, but would also turn out the cheaper grades by use of stock not up to standard for the higher-priced output.

CONSECRATION OF BISHOP FREEMAN

Washington, Sept. 29.—Church dignitaries and high officials of the government were among the participants in services at Epiphany Church today for the consecration of the Rev. Dr. James E. Freeman as third Bishop of the Protestant Episcopal diocese of Washington. The new Bishop, who was rector of the church selected for the consecration was elected last Spring. A sermon by Bishop Manning of New York, preceded the taking of the oath by the Bishop-elect at the ministration of the Right Rev. Thomas F. Gailor, D. D., Bishop Lawrence of Massachusetts, and Bishop Murray of Maryland, as consecrators.

As a result of an inquest Judge Philip A. Kelley of Lynn found Ernest E. Hart not guilty of manslaughter in causing the death of Kenneth B. Moore on August 14. Moore was struck by Hart's car while he was crossing the street.

ATTORNEYS OF STATE O. K. JURY

District Attorneys Agree the Present System, With a Few Changes, Is Best

Attorney-General Jay Benton and the eight district attorneys of the State today gave their views on the jury system to the special commission created by the Legislature to investigate the matter.

The attorney-general explained that there had been a conference of the district attorneys with him to consider the jury system in all its phases. They came to the conclusion, he said, that trial by jury is still the most important factor, under our representative democracy, in the protection of lives, liberty, property and reputation of the people.

JURY SYSTEM APPROVED.

A statement of the views of the chief law officer of the State on the jury system, in which the law officers of the several districts concurred, was read to the commission. It follows:

"It is the best protection for innocence, and the surest mode of punishing guilt that has yet been discovered. We, as prosecuting officers, are not in favor of any radical change in the system as it now exists in this Commonwealth.

"While there have been capable failures of certain juries to return a true verdict according to the evidence, we are, nevertheless, of the opinion that the jury system, taken as a whole, throughout the Commonwealth is of high grade, and that hundreds of our citizens are doing their part on juries honestly and conscientiously. We also recognize the fact that, like everything human, the jury system has its imperfections.

RECOMMENDATIONS.

"We are agreed that in some respects the system can be improved, and to that end we make the following recommendations:

"(1) That all resident citizens be eligible to be placed on the jury lists.

"(2) That in the preparation of lists under the provisions of the general laws all persons under consideration for placing on the lists be required to fill out a questionnaire, with a view to securing information as to the person's reputation, character and fitness for jury service. This questionnaire should be sworn to, and penalty provided for affirming falsely to any material fact thereto.

"(3) That all persons before being placed on the jury lists should be personally examined.

"(4) That the exemptions should, on the whole, be left as they now stand in the statutes.

"(5) That jurors' fees should remain as they now are, as provided in the general laws, but that jurors should be reimbursed for actual travel.

"(6) That the term of service of jurors should be shortened.

"(7) That the accommodations for jurors at many of the court houses be improved and that the rooms which have been aptly described as 'chambers of horrors' be done away with. Accommodation for business men should be provided for as has been done in other States so that if necessary a man could carry on his business from the court house if necessary."

Questioned by members of the commission the attorney-general said that the question of women serving on juries was one that the district attorneys in conference could not agree upon. He said that his personal opinion was that women should be allowed to choose this serving if they so desired, but he was against making it compulsory.

BEACON TRUST COMPANY'S NEW VAULT DEFIES LAWLESS

GUARDED BY EVERY DEVICE KNOWN; HAS 10,000 BOXES

The culmination of th eremarkable progress which has been made by modern business in providing protection for securities and other valuables from loss by theft or destruction by fire has undoubtedly been reached in the modern bank vault of the new Beacon Trust Company at No. 31 Milk Street.

Guarded by every device known to the art of vault making, this new vault is designed to resist successfully every conceivable kind of attack which could be made upon it either by the forces of nature or the lawless element of mankind. Even the most modern and destructive invention—so far as metal is concerned—the oxy-acetylene torch—is ineffective against a vault of this type.

10,000 DEPOSIT BOXES

This new vault not only provides a place of absolute security for the records and funds of the bank itself, but is also equipped with a large number of safe deposit boxes of various sizes for the use of depositors of the Beacon Trust Company and others. Provision is made at the present time for about 1,300 deposit boxes, with an ultimate capacity of about 10,000 boxes. Each box is, for all practical purposes, an individual fireproof and burglar-proof steel vault, under individual lock and key.

Entrance to the vault quarters is by a broad stairway from the main foyer of the banking quarters. Behind a grille of heavy chilled steel bars reaching from floor to ceiling stands the vault itself, installed by the Mosler Safe Company—a massive steel-and-concrete building within a building.

NINETEEN TON DOOR

Guarding the entrance to the vault proper is a huge steel door weighing nineteen tons, into which are fitted a number of controlling devices which connect the locks with the main bolting system of the doors. These devices are designed to hold the door securely locked, even if all the locks should be blown or otherwise forced from the door.

The walls are of concrete, reinforced by a steel rail grille set close on centres. These walls are absolutely fireproof and have a high resistance to explosives and the use of burglar's appliances, and will protect the inner steel lining against such modern devices as the electric steel burning arc, thermite, a powder capable of producing extreme heat, as well as the oxy-acetylene burner.

INSIDE STRUCTURE

The concrete protecting the top of the vault is imbedded with a steel grillage on the top, bottom, sides, front and back, affording complete protection against any failing weight such as building walls or the shock from explosives. Directly behind the walls and laying tightly against them is the steel vault lining. This lining is formed of interlocking plate and forged sections, so carefully arranged and bolted together as to form the closest possible approximation to a perfectly solid structure, but superior to a solid as it possesses a slight amount of flexibility so necessary to resist shock.

MODERN INGENUITY

The vault door is a splended example of modern ingenuity. The door and vestibule each are made of a single billet of steel too hard to be cut and too strong to be broken even by large charges of dynamite or nitro-glycerine. Yet so perfectly is this door hung upon its giant hinges that it may be moved with the application of less than a ten-pound pull. When closed the door is forced into place by pressure mechanism and the joints become proof against the entrance of wedges or liquid explosives.

PRIVACY SAFEGUARDED

The purpose of the Beacon Trust Company in installing this vault, was to provide ample accommodation for its depositors and others who desire a place for the safekeeping of their securities and other valuables. Each separate safe deposit box is provided with two keys, both of which are held by the party renting the box. There are no duplicate keys and the box is therefore accessible only to the person renting it. Ample safeguards are used to prevent access to the box through misrepresentation or by other devious methods.

BEACON TRUST VAULT

NEW BOXES FOR DEPOSITORS

Provision is made at the present time for about 1,300 deposit boxes with an ultimate capacity of about 10,000 boxes to provide accommodations for Beacon Trust depositors and others.

CHAS. G. CLAPP CO. HAS VERY BUSY WEEK

Eunice Young Byrne has sold through the Charles G. Clapp Co. to Chester E. Chellman. Property is located at No. 6 Myrtle street, Winchester, Mass., and consisting of modern single house and 5,000 feet of land. New owner will occupy.

A. F. McDougall has purchased through the Charles G. Clapp Co. an attractive residence located at No. 366 Massachusetts avenue, Lexington, Mass. R. W. E. Vickery is the seller.

A single residence and about 6,000 feet of land at No. 21 Ruggles street, Quincy, has been sold by Thomas Landis through the Charles G. Clapp Co. to Richard M. Turner.

Papers have been recorded, transferring title to Catherine A. Sawyer, of a three apartment house and about 15,000 feet of land located on Reedsdale road, Milton. New owner buys for a home and investment. Sale was negotiated by the Charles G. Clapp Co.

No. 36 Folsom street, Revere, has been sold by John S. Gurahin to James Maguire, through the Charles G. Clapp Co. The property comprises a single residence, garage and about 4,000 feet of land. New owner will occupy.

Helen J. Lutted has sold to Katherine M. Flitner her property located on Elm street, Georgetown, Mass. The estate comprises about 2½ acres of land, eight-room modern house and necessary outbuildings. Sale was negotiated by the Charles G. Clapp Co.

The Charles G. Clapp Company, real estate brokers of Boston, through their local manager at Milton, during the past week negotiated for the following transfers of Milton property: Single house of seven rooms, 4,500 feet of land, on Churchill's Lane, for Peter J. Mockis, to Elsie O. Andersen of Boston; seven-room house and 5,000 feet of land on Breck street for John Ryan to John A. Hanley of Boston.

ELCHO CIGAR PLANT ADDS ANOTHER UNIT

Arrangements have been made by the Elcho Cigar Company for the purchase of the building on Columbus avenue, formerly occupied as a cigar factory by Waitt & Bond. When this building is finally taken over by the new owners it will give to Boston again the honor of having the largest cigar factory in New England and will probably assure that the popular brands of cigars made by hand by union labor will continue to be made in Boston.

Plan Helps Building of Low Cost Homes

A low cost home on liberal terms. This sums up the offer made by the L. D. Griswold Co. on its Golden Hills development, located at Melrose Highlands. The Griswold Plan places a home within the reach of almost everyone.

Golden Hills, already an attractive home community, is located in Melrose Highlands about seven miles from Boston. Excellent transportation facilities are provided by the Boston & Maine Railroad and the electric lines. The development is reached by Griswold Road, which commences at 1147 Main street.

There are over 250 acres of land on "Golden Hills," a large portion of which has already been subdivided into house lots, and streets which have been graded, lights, telephones, etc., installed. Several hundred contracts have been erected, including 50 since Spring, and orders for many more on hand.

Golden Hills is an ideal home community, and its developers and owners are endeavoring to attract the home seeker of limited means who finds the cost of the average home beyond his means-reach. Visit Golden Hills and determine for yourself the Griswold Plan of Home ownership. Agents on the land every day and evening. Sunday included. The Boston office of the L. D. Griswold Co. is at No. 108 Mass. avenue, Boston.

EDISON CO. HAS NEW STORE AND OFFICE

John J. Ahern has leased to the Edison Electric Illuminating Company of Boston, the store and basement at No. 5 Pond street, Natick. The Edison Company will make this an addition to their chain of stores where they will exhibit their electrical appliances and have an office for the collection of bills.

This lease was negotiated through the office of Whitcomb & Company.

Watertown House

Eugene N. Foss, president of the Suburban Realty Corporation, has sold the estate, Nos. 226 to 234 Boylston street, Watertown, Mass., consisting of a two-family frame dwelling of twelve rooms and all improvements together with 6,310 square feet of land to John Mukjian, who will occupy for a home.

The sale was made through the office of Warren F. Freeman and Warren F. Freeman, Jr.

Year's Best Selling Novel Reveals Mysterious Return of Youth and Beauty to Old Woman

START THIS BEST-SELLER HERE TODAY

A young and beautiful woman creates a sensation at a first night in New York by rising in her seat at the theatre and coolly surveying the audience through her lorgnettes, after the European fashion. Lee Clavering, a brilliant newspaper writer, is immediately interested, and learns she is the image of a former society belle, Mary Ogden, though much younger than she should be at that time. He makes her acquaintance and finds she is Countess Josef Zattiany. He nearly guesses her secret. He asks her to marry him. He takes her to a gay studio party, after which she invites him home to hear her story of renewed youth. He is stunned by the revelation. Meanwhile, Janet Oglethorpe, flapper daughter of one of Clavering's intimate friends, confesses her love for him. Then Madam Zattiany agrees to marry him and they plan their honeymoon.

HAMBONE MAY BE CHOICE IF HE MEETS M'CARTHY AGAIN

KAYO KING CAN TAKE A PUNCH

By JACK CONWAY

Hambone Kelly will be heard from again.

The South Boston fighting showed a vast improvement in his boxing bout with Pat McCarthy at Roslindale at the Suffolk A. A.'s show at the Boston Arena.

Although McCarthy was declared the winner after ten fast rounds of battle, Referee Sport Bowen and Judges Ryan and Kenney gave the decision to Kelly by a wide margin.

"Watch Hambone. He is a comer and I was even in the favor he if he clashes with McCarthy again."

This was the opinion of several ringsiders after the bout was finished. Kelly was the aggressor throughout the first three rounds while Hambone was content to stand off and box. Kelly was the aggressor throughout the first three rounds while Hambone was content to stand off and box.

AT THE OPENING OF THE TENTH WAS ANYBODY'S FIGHT.

At the opening of the tenth frame it was anybody's fight.

The men stood toe to toe and slugged with all their might and main. Both were groggy on their feet and refused the pounding of leather from a foe intent on victory. At this stage of the battle it was anybody's fight.

Then came fighting frame and Hambone, who had been fighting a defensive battle, let loose a right and left combination that sent McCarthy down for a count of nine.

HEAD TO HEAD THEY SHOT PUNCHES LIKE BULLETS

Head to head, as Dempsey and Firpo did two weeks ago, Hambone and McCarthy fought. Punches shot forth like bullets spatter from the muzzle of a machine gun.

Hambone caught McCarthy on the jaw with a right hand punch. McCarthy countered with a left to the body. The two fighters stood toe to toe and slugged it out. Hambone knocked down. He was up and at it again before the count of nine was over.

HAMBONE FOWLER'D HIS HEAD AND MADE BIG EFFORT

Despite defeat, Hambone carried his head high, forged forward and let go a wild left hand swing. McCarthy, seeing an opening, stepped back out of the way of the punch, then quick as a panther drove in close and let another heavy right on Hambone's jaw.

The South Boston boy tottered, but came back with a right to the head. McCarthy ducked, but Hambone caught him on the body.

Back and forth they went, each trying for a knockout punch. Hambone was the aggressor throughout the round.

KELLY CONTINUED HIS SLUGGING IN THE SEVENTH FRAME

Kelly started the seventh frame in the same manner that he had finished the sixth round. He carried the fight to McCarthy, calling upon all of his reserves, stepped back out of the way of the punch, then quick as a panther drove in close and let another heavy right on Hambone's jaw.

The South Boston boy tottered, but came back with a right to the head. McCarthy ducked, but Hambone caught him on the body.

WALTER LEE WON OVER GOULD IN EIGHT ROUNDS

Walter Lee, [illegible] won over Jack Gould in eight rounds of fast boxing at the Arena last night. Lee had the advantage of weight and reach and used it to good effect.

Gould, however, made another effort but McCarthy kept at long range and had the advantage.

THAT CLOSING DESPERATE SPURT GAVE MAC VICTORY.

The closing, desperate spurt was what gave the victory to McCarthy.

Hambone surprised those in the crowd who had branded him a quitter when they thought he would fling up the sponge in the seventh round. He was not yet ready to admit defeat and the one who had to admit defeat was Referee Bowen, who declared McCarthy the winner.

CONTINUED TO HOLD THE ADVANTAGE THROUGH EIGHTH.

The closing was continued by Luke Jerome, who succeeded Tommy Burns, who was disqualified in the seventh round. Jerome continued to hold the advantage.

The big McCarthy effort was made in the fifth round. He rushed Hambone with left and right hand socks and had the South Boston fighter on the run at the bell. To many it appeared that Hambone was about to fade out of the picture.

HAMBONE WAS WESTLED TO MAT IN THE FOURTH.

Those confident pointed to the fact that Hambone was very tired in the fourth round, so much so that he was wrestled to the mat while at close quarters.

Came the sixth frame. McCarthy went out to win by a knockout. He

Week-End New York Market Heavy After Fresh Lows for the Year are Set

FORBES' VIEWS ON FINANCE

—By B. C. Forbes—

This is a great country for opportunity. A hitherto unemployed couple migrated to this country with a ten-year-old son. Within the past week the young immigrant was elected to an office which means that a year from now he will be made president of the organization which conducts all the clearing houses in America.

Meanwhile also, for little lad—no longer a lad in years, but still a young man in enthusiasm and energy—has climbed from a minor clerkship to the presidency of the best known savings bank in America, the Bowery Savings Bank, with which every thirtieth person in New York has a deposit.

Each case is interesting. Both broke on the obstacles which pioneers encounter on arriving in the country. This immigrant's experience in the bank department soon specially equipped to help foreigners, and its perfecting plans to render a similar service to the hundreds of others who annually [illegible]

COTTON MILLS IN SOUTH MORE ACTIVE

Cotton mills of both Carolinas have all resumed full time operations following the period designated a few weeks ago that were in the midst of drastic curtailment. Observers in the industry are looking for better times. Stocks are low from shelves to retailer to cotton in mill were houses. Buyers are reluctant to purchase far ahead of actual demand but buying must be constant from now on, manufacturers feel.

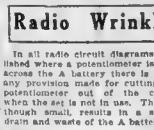
Radio Wrinkle

In all radio circuit diagrams published where a potentiometer is used across the battery there is never any provision made for cutting the potentiometer out of the circuit when the set is not in use. This, although small, results in a steady drain and waste of the A battery.



By connecting the potentiometer, as shown in the diagram, it is automatically cut out of the circuit when the rheostat is turned off. P. S. North Wilmington.

The Boston American will pay one dollar for the best radio wrinkle published daily. Address, Radio Editor, Boston American.

Masons and Knights of Columbus Unite

Announcement has been made that the Masonic Club of Woonsocket, R. I. had invited the Woonsocket Council of the Knights of Columbus to be their guests at Masonic Club Hall on October 23 at a luncheon and social gathering. The Knights of Columbus have accepted the invitation, which was unanimously extended and unanimously accepted. The Masonic Club is an organization representing all the Masonic bodies in that locality.

We call attention to the incident, not because it is extraordinary or surprising, but because it came to our attention while the future of the Ku Klux Klan was under consideration.

The very possibility even of one incident of this sort shows the impossibility of the Ku Klux Klan and depicts its ephemeral character. While it is possible in any community for the members of the affiliated bodies of Masons to invite the members of the Knights of Columbus to come together in a social gathering, it will be impossible for organizations like the Klan to flourish.

Although the news columns of our papers have made much of the rise of the Ku Klux Klan, and have wisely done so because it was interesting news and because it could not thrive in the fierce light of publicity, yet we have never taken it seriously. It is one of those periodical outbreaks like a skin disease—part heat and part corruption, part hysteria and part graft. A great majority of the Klan's members are honest and patriotic according to their light. But they are emotional and not thoughtful.

It is impossible to work up fear of Catholics in the hearts and minds of non-Catholic men and women who once sat beside those Catholics as boys and girls in the public schools; played baseball and football with them; sewed with them; cooked with them, and enjoyed them according to their human characteristics without thought of their differences in religion. The great melting pot of America is the public schools. So long as they flourish, no one needs to fear religious schisms.

The Ku Klux Klan will never become dangerous while unwise and unpatriotic interests remain unable to destroy our public schools and to prevent the intimate associations of our children during their childhood without reference to race or religion or to previous conditions of servitude.

Thank Heaven for our public schools! Long may they flourish!

When the Knights and Masons meet in Woonsocket, they will meet as they met in school years ago. And they can meet now because they met in school.

A Small Lost World in a Universe of Water

"Sighting of the Azores" Is One Incident of a Voyage Across the Atlantic

Copyright, 1923, Star Co.

As you cross the Atlantic by the Southern route the "sighting of the Azores" is one incident of your voyage. Just before daybreak the ship is shaking and the passengers roused by the deep tones of the big steam whistle.

One by one shivering forms straggle up from below, like reluctant spirits answering a premature last call. Bare feet in slippers and shivering forms with overcoats over nightgowns gradually line the rails.

On the left there appears, apparently, a heavy, dark bank of clouds.

"The Azores!" shouts down from the bridge your yellow-whiskered captain, looking as cheerful and warm as though it were noon.

You watch, shiver and blink as the light grows stronger behind the pinkish clouds in the east. The dark cloud settles into solid land. You see it clearly. Sharply outlined against the sky stands, forty miles long, a mammoth saw with huge teeth, irregular, sharp. The powers of old-time volcanoes made all of that land, and those sharp saw-teeth, pointing toward the sky, are the destroyers of long ago, cold and dead now, but telling ominously of the power that lies hidden below.

Between you and the brightening sunrise, suspended in the "crow's nest," half way up the mast, stands the sailor who watches the sea for you through the night. He calls out, and ahead to the left you see a small boat filled with human beings that seem scarcely as big as your finger. Your ship could plough through miles of such small boats—but out there in the ocean, just as well as inside the biggest courthouse, LAW rules, and the big ship must turn out for the small fishing boat.

Those fishermen feel that THEY are the REAL world; the steamship and outside creation are only half imagined, interesting phenomena. You look down from the deck and the fishermen seem unreal little ornaments of your European excursion. And so the two sets of human beings go their ways—to each nothing is important save that which each is doing.

There are great planets and suns that roll past us across this cosmic ocean of ether. Our pathetic little round earth looks to them as that fishing-boat of the Azores looks to you. And WE think of those great interstellar travelers as the fisherman in his little boat thinks of the ocean liner—the great star to us is merely an interesting feature of OUR sky. And we actually wonder whether there is any thought on that big, distant sun; any intelligence on the vast ship that ploughs the ocean of limitless space.

The high bridge of volcanic peaks and the others near it are made fertile and green by soil gradually developed through the centuries by seeds brought across the ocean by winds and birds.

Fences are built across the fields of thin soil that cover the lava. Each inch of that land thrown up by fire "belongs" to some man. White houses stand at the edges of deep lava canyons running from the mountain tops to the sea's edge, made by pouring lava or by the splitting of the mountains under fearful pressure.

Children play about the blocks of lava—and all their lives, no matter where they may go these children will think of that far-off island as the only real home, and of black lava block as the only REAL kind of stone.

But some child playing there today may be like that other island child, Napoleon, and live to make the rest of the world talk about the island that bred him. Or, better still, some one of those children, with a brain made powerful by solitude and noble thought, may have the idea that shall help us all, teach us more and more to think kindly of each other and help each other, instead of passing each other coldly and indifferently as the ship passes the little, far-off island.

BEES MAKE FREE OF SHOP

PARIS, Sept. 29.—A swarm of bees invaded a baker's shop in the Avenue Bougeaud last week and kept all the clients at a distance during three hours while they sampled the cakes. The distracted proprietor appealed for help to the local police and the municipal [illegible] out of the jam tarts and flew away before the authorities arrived on the spot.

Offers Many Things

Editor Helping Hand:

Will you kindly send me the address of someone who could use the following. About six dresses for a girl seven or eight, two Winter coats, size 7 or 8, woman's suit size 36, nearly new high heeled shoes, size 4 narrow, [illegible] curtains. I will have more later.

MRS. T. R. E.

Thank you. You have sent the address of Mrs. J. S., to will be very glad of these things.

Wants Home for Baby

Editor Helping Hand:

I am left with three small children, as my husband passed [illegible] four months ago. My baby is four months old. I cannot pay his board any place, and I wonder if some kind reader could take him for me, as I have the other two children to care for.

MRS. L. G. C.

Family Needs Clothes

Editor Helping Hand:

I am twenty-two years old and expect to become a mother very soon. My husband has been out of work for the last [illegible] on account of illness. My sister is lending us money to pay the rent. I would appreciate any clothes for my expected little one; for my husband, [illegible] or shirts 15½, coats, etc., or maternity dresses or any [illegible] for myself, size [illegible].

MRS. A. W. H.

Generous Offer

Editor Helping Hand:

Will you please [illegible] address of R. I. [illegible] a woolen suit and [illegible] a jersey skirt and [illegible] waists, all size 38. I also kindly send me the address of some mother that [illegible] near Lawrence that I can take things to in the machine. I have things for a boy of four or five.

MRS. H. S.

Thank you. You have been sent the addresses of R. C. R. and of Mrs. C. W. G., mother of [illegible] one of them four years old.

No Moth Will Get at These

Editor Helping Hand:

I received your letter with the addresses I requested, and also have received letters from them, and will help them. You may hold the articles supposed for replies. I think they are size seven and almost new. Also I have a woman's house dress that would fit a woman 48 or 50, a blue serge skirt, and some other things, and a man's Winter hat, size seven. I wish some people would realize that the things they hoard up to feed moths could keep someone warm.

MRS. R. O. H.

Thank you. You have been sent the address of Mrs. [illegible] and the hat will be held for replies.

Winter Suit to Give

Editor Helping Hand:

I have a Winter suit, size 38, nearly lined which I would like to give to some deserving person. Also a hat or two.

C. E. M.

Thank you. You have been sent the address of G. A. on receipt of a family who is [illegible] only eighteen dollars a week.

Three Boys in Need

Editor Helping Hand:

In a few lines to ask is there some kind reader that has boys' clothing for my three boys. I am a widow and find it hard to get along on what I receive, as I am not able to work. The boys are twelve, nine and six. They all go to school, and need some warm clothing for the Winter. I need underwear, size six, and also a hat. Hoping that some kind reader will be able to help me a little, I will thank them very much, and perhaps some day I will be able to help someone else.

MRS. L. M. 4.

Has Warm Coat

Editor Helping Hand:

The following things have been given me for distribution. Some little girl of eight, ten or twelve would appreciate a warm coat. I have three of them for those ages. Also a few other things that can be made over.

MRS. R. G. L.

Thank you. You have been sent the address of Mrs. M. A., who has girls those ages.

Asks for Bed Clothes

Editor Helping Hand:

I received your two lovely letters today. I got a beautiful box of new clothes from Mrs. C., and Norma cried when she saw the things. I wrote her a letter thanking her. On what the Helping Hand has done for our home in bringing [illegible] and happiness to Norma [illegible] looked lovely going to [illegible] Mama also wrote to [illegible] thanking her. Mama says if you could let us know [illegible] one has any kind of bed clothing or bed. She could pay the expressage. I hope I am not asking too much from you, but mama has to put coats over us nights.

CLAIRE.

For Boy of Six

Editor Helping Hand:

I have three pairs of pants, two blouses, blue top coat and a few other things that would fit a boy about six. If you will send me the address of someone needing them, I will send them parcel post. Will [illegible] or perhaps [illegible].

Mrs. M. A. C. B.

Thank you. You have been sent the address of Mrs. L. A. M., who has two children to care for.

Needs Baby Walker

Editor Helping Hand:

I am the mother of seven children, and would like if Mrs. G. C. B. would let me have the baby walker, as I have a very cross baby that is just beginning to walk, and if I had a walker it would help both the baby and myself. If I get the walker, when I am through with it, I will send it to someone else in need.

Mrs. H.

You have been sent Mrs. G. C. B.'s address, and hope it makes life easier for both you and the youngster.

Great Variety Offered

Editor Helping Hand:

I have clothing for a woman [illegible] to 50, including a broadcloth jacket, serge dress, petticoats, corset covers, dressing sacks, bathrobe, sweater, aprons, [illegible] Will you send me the address of someone who could use these things?

F. G. M.

Thank you. You have been sent the address of Mrs. J. A. M., who is caring for an old mother, and who would be very grateful for these things.

GARRETT P. SERVISS ON FINDING PLANETS

By Garrett P. Serviss

Famous Astronomer and Writer on Scientific Topics of Popular Interest

REFERRING to a recent article in which I explained to an inquirer the relative positions of the planets when they are called "evening" or "morning" [illegible] Mr. Charles Adkins of Dayton, Ohio, writes that he has prepared a simple apparatus by which the movements of both inside and outside planets are correctly represented, as well as the movement of the moon, thus clearing up what "seems to be an interesting mystery to so many people."

Mr. Adkins does not describe [illegible] rather than by saying that it resembles a clock dial, but with months reading round to the left instead of "noon" reading to the right. Only the [illegible] Earth and Mars are represented, together with the moon revolving around the earth, each planet being carried at the end of a clock hand of appropriate relative length.

Of Great Interest

It would be a source of great interest for anybody to construct for himself a planetary dial, by means of which, with the aid simply of the American Ephemeris and Nautical Almanac, he could follow the motions of the planets, and know at any time in what part of the sky to look for [illegible]. The plan of such a dial is represented in our sketch.

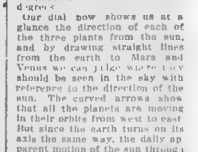
Suppose the sun to be in the centre, and let the three circles represent respectively the orbits of Venus, the Earth and Mars at [illegible] Let [illegible] be taken as mean distances from the sun, which are 67, 91 and 141½ million miles respectively. What we want in order to show how these planets are posited with reference to one another and to the [illegible] is to divide [illegible] each [illegible] number of degrees that they [illegible] from the first meridian of [illegible] the vernal equinox, represented by the figures 0, [illegible] etc.

[illegible] into the American [illegible] for November 1, 1923, which are the heliocentric [illegible] the earth on that [illegible] giving no minutes of [illegible] we will show on our [illegible] degrees. Estimate the distance with reference to the figures on the dial, we place the earth in its orbit at the point indicated.

In a we find from the ephemeris that on the same date the longitude of Venus is 226 degrees, and measuring around the dial from the zero point, we find the [illegible] spot where Venus should be placed. In a similar manner we find where to put Mars, whose longitude on November 1 is 172 degrees.

Our dial now shows us at a glance the direction of each of the three planets from the sun, and by drawing straight lines from the earth to Mars and Venus we can [illegible] where they should be seen in the sky with reference to the direction of the sun. The curved arrows show that all the planets are moving in their orbits from west to east [illegible] But since the earth turns on its axis the same way, the daily apparent motion of the sun through the sky must be the opposite way, or from east to west.

This being so, it [illegible] portion of the dial shows that Mars must be a morning star, because it is west of the sun and must, therefore, set before the sun. Setting while the sun is still above the horizon, of course it cannot be seen in the evening. But if it sets before the sun, it must also rise before the sun, so it is evidently visible in the morning sky before sunrise.



HELIOCENTRIC LONGITUDES OF THE PLANETS NOVEMBER 1, 1923

Inspection of the dial also shows us at once that Venus must be an evening star, since her position is east of the sun, which causes her to set after the sun has gone below the horizon

Larger Dial

By making a larger dial you could put in the other three naked-eye planets—Mercury, Jupiter and Saturn—and then you would have a movable representation of the whole solar system as far as the naked eye sees it, and could, by reference to the ephemeris, set each of the sky planets, including the earth, in its proper place with regard to the sun, on any day of the year.

A planetarium of that kind would then always tell you which planets were evening and which morning stars. Around the dial you could arrange, in their order, the twelve constellations of the zodiac. I am sure that everybody would find this a fascinating way to become familiar with the motions of the system of worlds in which our lot is cast

HEROINES OF HISTORY

ZENOBIA'S RISE AND FALL

By Mark Stuyvesant

"THE Roman people speak with contempt of the war I am waging against a woman. They are ignorant both of the character and power of Zenobia."

Thus wrote the Roman Emperor Aurelian of the beautiful "Queen of the East" in the third century before Christ.

Although Zenobia was Empress of Palmyra, and at one time ruled over Syria, Egypt and part of Asia Minor, it is not these facts in what country she was born. Some writers have said that she was descended from Solomon, who is recorded in the Bible as the founder of Palmyra. Others have described her as the daughter of an Arab chief. Zenobia herself boasted that she was descended from Cleopatra.

This beautiful woman was the wife of Odenatus, ruler of Palmyra. His strength lay in the fact that Zenobia, his queen and ruled jointly with him. It is said that his power as a strategist were simply the outcome of the cleverness of his wife's brain, and that he relied on her judgment implicitly.

After her husband's death, Zenobia ruled alone and displayed great wisdom and diplomacy. She added to her possessions so brilliantly and swiftly that she soon was styled the "Queen of the East," and was regarded as a most formidable enemy. Even Rome was jealous of her.

Zenobia showed untiring devotion and sympathy for her troops. When a long march was necessary across the desert, the empress would dismount and trudge along in her own ranks, and shoulder to shoulder with her soldiers. They loved and revered her, and stood by her until her defeat by the Romans, under Aurelian, who came in person to besiege her magnificent city of Palmyra, which was overshadowing Rome in grandeur and wealth.

Not content with conquering Palmyra, Aurelian seized Zenobia and took her back to Rome to partake in his triumph. It was a cruel humiliation for this proud empress to follow on foot the victorious Aurelian's chariot. Behind her was her own gold-mounted war chariot in which she had driven in many triumphant processions

As she sprang along, defeated and heartsick, the heavy golden chains which bound her hands and feet clanking at each step, she was a pitiful figure.

She had failed, but she had done the best she could for the land she loved.

THREE-MINUTE TRIPS

STILL BLOWS HIS HORN

By Temple Manning

"AS true as steel as Ripon rolls" used to be a common term in England many years ago. For Ripon was famous for centuries for its manufacture of fine spurs. Armies and knights of every degree of steel and of such finished workmanship were these celebrated spurs, that they are even referred to in the verse of Jonson and Davenant.

But early in the last century, with the introduction of machinery, the manufacture of the wrought spurs and other fine hardware lessened in Ripon. For those articles were then turned out in bulk in the large manufacturing centres.

However, the passing of Ripon spurs did not cause a decline in the interest of this charming old English city. Because it carries with its name historical fascination which can never dwindle.

For in this ancient city was built a cathedral on the site of the ruins of St. Wilfred's Abbey about the year 680, in the reign of the Saxon king, Egfrid.

So devoted to old customs are the citizens, and so much do the old traditions mean to them that the traveler may still easily surprised at anything he observes which may be out of the ordinary.

For instance, every night in Ripon the official "wakener," a historical costume, presents himself before the house of the mayor. Very solemnly he raises an old horn—"the horn of Ripon"—and blows three long, loud blasts on it. This is to advise the mayor that all is well within the city over which he has the honor to preside.

For over a thousand years this same ceremony has taken place every night in this charming old historical town.

Why My Love for Germany's "Miracle" Man Turned to Hate

"Coward, Brute!" Cries the "Blue Bird" Producer's Lovely Actress-Wife, Who Says He Sought to Tarnish Their Own Child's Name

By Elsie Heims Reinhardt.

"FOR eleven years I gave my love and my life to this man, asking not even the protoection of his name. What has been my return?

"He has heralded our secret romance to the world.

"He has branded our first-born with the bar sinister.

"He has made me, on my knees, confess to loves I never had.

"His own loves he flaunted in my face—from a royal princess to his latest infatuation.

"To wed her, he would divorce a faithful wife and disgrace his own child!

"But I will not submit! The love I bore him has become hate. The world calls him Germany's 'miracle man'; I will show him in his true colors—a coward, a brute, a Don Juan!"

BERLIN.

FASHIONABLE and artistic Germany is amazed. Its "perfect stage romance" has crashed. Its "greatest producer" is suing for divorce. Its "loveliest actress" is fighting the suit. She, who was held above reproach, is termed a disciple of unconventional love. He, whom the public hailed as its "miracle man," is painted as a philanderer who would tarnish the good name of his own child in order to be rid of his wife and wed another!

When Max Reinhardt, Napoleon of the Continental stage, producer of the great religious play, "The Miracle"—a genius whose private life was considered impeccable and whose gentle smile seemed the symbol of his character—when Reinhardt, the honored and beloved of all Germany, filed suit for divorce against his actress wife, Elsie Heims, the stage world of Berlin was stunned.

Not only were these two first in their field—Reinhardt as producer and Elsie Heims as star—but they were first among those celebrated cases to whom observers pointed as shining examples of artists who can live happily together in marriage. Divorce? It seemed impossible!

The unadorned news of the filing of the suit was only the first startler, however. When Reinhardt's detailed charges were made public, it was discovered that, instead of making the usual stereotyped claims of cruelty or incompatibility, he had flung back the curtains and revealed the whole history of an unconventional love life with his own wife!

Briefly stating that he married Elsie Heims in England July 22, 1910, and alleging that their first child, Wolfgang, had been born to them nearly two years before the ceremony, Reinhardt went on to explain:

"We learned to know one another as young actor and actress, and there developed between us one of those love affairs which arise so easily in the theatre and are usually of temporary character. I did not have the intention to legitimate the relation with marriage, for I stood at that time at the beginning of a promising career, which absorbed my interest and my energies to a large extent.

"I was at this time extraordinarily overburdened with my work, so that I was constantly active until far into the night in the interests of far-reaching enterprises founded by me. Moreover, I wanted to retain my freedom as far as possible, and I felt that I was so occupied with my career that I did not consider myself fitted to enter matrimony.

"I repeatedly emphasized this to the defendant. In the first years of our relations she was in agreement that I should not legally make her my wife. In time this attitude of hers changed, however, and she sought in every way and by every means to become my legal wife. The scenes she made were of no avail, and a challenge to a duel that her eldest brother sent me only served to strengthen my refusal.

"Not until the defendant, toward the end of 1908, gave birth to a child—Wolfgang—did I, notwithstanding many warnings, decide for marriage, since I felt that I was related in blood to the newly-born. This marriage was legalized after eleven years of relations out of wedlock."

The last sentence Reinhardt emphasized with heavy underlining in his petition. He continued with the declaration that he had implicit faith in the fidelity of his wife, but that, five years after marriage, she voluntarily confessed misconduct with a number of their friends, including Counselor of Justice Dr. Lubszynski, the actor Beregi and Herr von Wangenheim.

"When I told her of the necessity for a separation, she told others she had been deserted and assumed the role of the faithful wife who sought only her children's welfare. Many men were in her train. She was always the shrew when we were alone together, for we were still under the same roof, and she incited the children against me, in every way making my life miserable. From 1921, however, we have been completely separated."

Thus Reinhardt concluded his suit—a document that excited the amazement and wonder of all Germany. Public opinion regarded him, after that, as a stifled genius, jingoed into marriage, betrayed, tricked and hounded by a wife who neither appreciated him nor helped him. And so public opinion stayed until Elsie Heims answered her husband's charges.

"I am in no way ashamed of the love I gave this man," she declared, admitting that his statement regarding their early life together was true, "in spite of the fact that he has made me suffer greatly. It is quite different, however, for the plaintiff, after accepting it, to herald the fact that his eldest son is the child of that early love.

"The malice with which the plaintiff has handled this is but an indication of the moral depths to which he has fallen. As a loving father he should think first of the stain that, through his guilt, is attached to the child."

"He has called me over-ambitious in his suit," went on Mrs. Reinhardt. "He says I tried to make use of his position to further my own place in the theatre. What are the facts? When he produced Maeterlinck's 'The Blue Bird'—to cite but one instance of his cruelty—he needed me so much for the role of 'Mother Love' that he forced me to rehearse the part though I had been ordered, by my physician, to remain in bed, because of illness.

"I deny absolutely his charges that I ever loved another man. The only men I knew were old friends of his who came to our house. But Max was unreasonably jealous. Once he forced me to go to the telephone and call up several of our friends, telling them I could not see them any more. They were frankly puzzled by the message. One of them wrote me a note, asking what I meant. I shall produce that note in court.

"Max says he was unhappy at home. Here is a telegram he sent me as late as April. 'Kiss Wolfgang and Gottfried Wilhelm—a hug for yourself from your old growler who still loves you from the bottom of his heart and could never live without you.' Does that sound unhappy?"

Mrs. Reinhardt startled her interviewers by charging her husband with having fallen in love with prominent women of Germany. She named, among others, Princess Mechtilde Lichnowsky, beautiful and dignified wife of the German ambassador to the Court of St. James just before the World War. Mrs. Reinhardt declared that the Princess was introduced by Reinhardt to his brother, Edmund. The Princess, declared Mrs. Reinhardt, used to visit Edmund at night in Berlin by climbing the fire escape to his apartment.

"My husband's latest love is Helen Thimig, the actress," said Mrs. Reinhardt. "In the Summer of 1920 she eloped with him to his palatial castle of Leopoldskron"—the favorite palace of King Ludwig I. of Bavaria until the wealthy Reinhardt bought it—"and he now wishes to divorce me only so he can marry her.

"But I shall fight his suit to a finish. He has extraordinary power over women, and he has not scrupled to use it. But he shall learn that he cannot flout one woman, his wife, as he wills. When this case is tried in court, I will show Max Reinhardt in his true colors."

Pending the trial, the Reinhardt case is the all-absorbing topic of Germany. Since both sides have shown their cards, as it were, public opinion is at odds. While many declare that a man of Max Reinhardt's genius should be given free reign to live his life as he chooses, others declare his treatment of Elsie Heims—and their eldest child—is shameful.

Among the latter are several German newspapers. In one of these a cartoon shows the face of the "miracle man" with a line dividing it in half. One half, smiling genially, purports to be that Reinhardt whom the public adores; the other half, scowling vindictively, purports to be the real Reinhardt as revealed by his wife.

And the caption under the cartoon is: "Miracle Man or Masquerader?"

Medbury Says—

By John P. Medbury

THE Cleveland police department has started a crusade against male vamps, and the Mayor has ordered every sidewalk Romeo to leave town.

A SIDEWALK Romeo is a fellow who stands on street corners just to give the girls a treat.

MOST of these fellows imagine they're Sheiks, and they use the nearest doorway for a tent.

THEY'VE never seen the Orient, but they sprinkle themselves with Arabian perfume.

OF course you never hear of them carrying any girls away, because they wouldn't have enough car fare to take them three blocks.

THESE door-way Sheiks are expert horsemen; they learned it from riding on merry-go-rounds.

THEY go horseback riding every time they get a nickel.

IT'S nothing to see them throw a pail full of sand on a street corner, then sit down and imagine they're on the desert.

THEY make a wonderful picture at night with the moon shining on their polished hair.

THESE male sirens used to brush their hair with olive oil but now they use lard, it's cheaper.

SOME of them get bald and then save time by painting a beautiful hair comb on their skull.

THESE curbstone Valentinos usually display themselves on the corners at night after the girls are through working for the day.

THEY'D never present themselves to any dame until they've made sure that she has eaten.

THEY'RE sons of the desert and don't believe in being seen in public restaurants until all checks have been paid.

BUT the police department says they must leave town. The mayor will have to furnish the transportation because, if they had to pay their own way not one of them could get past the city limits.

GIVE THE KIND WORD DAY BY DAY.

Did you ever make it a rule for the day, to drop a word, of encouragement, to one or more persons with whom you came in contact that day?

You try it. Following this course would insure much happiness for yourself. Those who are sad and discouraged would be benefitted. Those who are struggling along under a heavier burden than they can bear gracefully will take heart.

The thought that you are interested and look to them to make good may be just the stimulus a weary one needs to go over the top in his efforts.

Why live such a selfish little life?

Even though you have not much money to spend you can be prodigal with kind words of appreciation of the efforts of others.
